William Reynolds Vance, Ph.D., LL.B., Dean of the Department of Law, was born and reared in Virginia. He graduated from Washington and Lee University and practiced law for several years in his native state. In 1897 he was appointed to a professorship in Washington and Lee University, and in 1902 became a member of the Faculty of Law in the George Washington University. In 1904, on the resignation of Harry St. George Tucker, he was made Dean of the Department of Law, which position he now holds.

At the Senior Law Smoker, Dean Vance announced that he had accepted a professorship in the Law Department of Yale University, and would take up his new work in October of this year. The students listened with regret and extreme sorrow to the words of the Dean, and when he had finished expressed their admiration for him and wished him success in his new position.

The entire University regrets the loss of the services of Dean Vance. He is an organizer, as well as an educator, and it is due to his untiring efforts and remarkable ability that our Law School has reached such a high standard and has received such wide recognition. Beloved by the students, respected by all, his departure from the Faculty of George Washington is deeply regretted. We wish him Godspeed.

Introduction

In publishing this edition of THE CHERRY TREE, the editors have striven to produce a record of the past year that would be as complete and as accurate as possible. In its compilation we have ever borne in mind the interests of the University, its Faculty, its student body, and its friends. We have spared no effort to produce a work that would reflect credit upon it, and at the same time be pleasing to all who turned its pages.

There will be some who will find discrepancies in our work, and some even will be disappointed in the editing of certain sections. We trust, kind reader, if you are one of these, that you will bear with us the trials and troubles with which we have had to contend and consider the circumstances carefully. No publication was ever printed that was perfect, and we do not consider this an exception. If you think it is what it should be, let your words repay us for the time and energy we have expended, and the difficulties we have had to overcome.

We have done our best, and we trust that you will find this book a source of pleasant recollections—a lasting memento of college days at George Washington.

With this foreword we commend our work to your hands.

THE EDITORS.

The University

The George Washington University was founded in 1821 by Luther Rice under the name of Columbian College. Its work was originally confined to instruction in languages, arts, science, and literature. In 1873, after gradual expansion and by the addition of other schools, the College became the Columbian University. The name was again changed by Act of Congress in 1904 to that of "The George Washngton University," and the institution was made none-sectarian.

The University is now composed of the following: The Department of Arts and Sciences, including the Faculty of Graduate Studies, The College of Arts and Sciences, The College of Engineering and Mechanic Arts, The College of the Political Sciences, The Teachers' College, and the Division of Architecture, The Department of Law; The Departments of Medicine and Dentistry; and the affiliated Colleges of Pharmacy and Veterinary Medicine.

The University owns five structures valued at about $1,200,000; it rents seven others and has associated with it two independent colleges which own their own buildings. Its present enrollment of students is more than 1400, and the Faculty numbers approximately 200.

All of the Departments are fully equipped to give thorough courses and the opportunities for original research in Washington cannot be surpassed. In addition to the well-selected Library of the University, the student has at his command the Library of Congress comprising 2,000,000 volumes, and by Act of Congress the scientific resources of the Government are made accessible to him.

The Morrill Acts

The Editor of THE CHERRY TREE has asked me for a story of the Morrill Acts in their relation to the District and the University.

The First Morrill Act (1862) distributed over 10,000,000 acres of the public lands among the various States and Territories of the Union for the purpose of lending Federal aid to collegiate education in subjects related to agriculture and the mechanic arts.

Beginning with the Second Morrill Act of 1890 and continuing with the Nelson Amendment of 1907 the Federal Government has made an annual appropriation of money for these same purposes—amounting this year to $40,000 for each State and Territory, $45,000 for next year, and thereafter $50,000 a year.

The Gallinger-Boutell Bill amending the Morrill Acts has two parts:

(1) The first section, which would be the act of the Federal Congress as representing the citizens of the various States, would make "available for the District of Columbia" the same annual appropriation now granted to each State and Territory, including even Hawaii and Porto Rico. The justice of this feature of the bill is universally admitted.

Where there is no "State" university or college and the State is not ready to create one, the Interior Department has always permitted the States to utilize the services of existing institutions upon private foundations. For many years this plan was followed by South Carolina, Connecticut and Rhode Island, and it is still followed by New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts—Cornell, Rutgers and Boston "Tech." administering the funds for their respective States.

(2) In the remaining sections of the bill, Congress as the legislature for the District of Columbia, would designate this university (there being no "State" university or college in the District) as the agent of the District legislature in providing the young people of the District with the forms of practical collegiate education contemplated in these Acts.

This bill was passed unanimously by the Senate of the last Congress on March 3, 1909, too late for action in the House. The Senate Committee of the Sixty-first Congress has reported the bill favorably and we are now awaiting the action of the House Committee.

President James of the Illinois University, who has been strangely diligent in organizing the opposition against this bill, has asserted that we are a sectarian institution. The absurd falsity of that charge is understood by all who know the following facts: (1) our revised charter, forbidding any denominational tests for trustees, officers and teachers; (2) our reorganized board, which comprises men affiliated with eight different denominations, there being no more than five trustees connected with any one church; (3) the unsectarian personnel of our administrative and teaching force; and finally, our new name, "George Washington," with its convincing pledge of the broad Americanism that is guiding the development of the institution.

To the chief objection of these outside educators, namely, that we are "a private institution," we reply that the Morrill Acts do not require a "State" university or college as the administrator of these funds; that the Interior and Treasury Departments (with the tacit consent of Congress) have for 40 years permitted the utilization of institutions like ours as being within the spirit and letter of the Morrill Acts; that, even now, we are subject to examination by the Attorney-General and Congress; and that the passage of this bill would make us a quasi-public institution, as the agent of the District legislature and under its closest supervision.

The passage of this bill would establish our new College of Engineering and the Mechanic Arts upon deep and broad foundations, and would indirectly open a new volume in the history of the entire University.

RICHARD D. HARLAN.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Since the above was written by Dr. Harlan, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives reported a bill to that body granting the benefits of the Morrill Acts to the District of Columbia and designating the George Washington University as the recipient thereof for a period of three years, at the expiration of which time the University may be redesignated. It is hoped that the bill will pass both Houses at this session.

The College of Engineering and Mechanic Arts

The College of Engineering and Mechanic Arts aims to provide for the young men of the District of Columbia instruction in the standard engineering courses. At this time its curriculum includes work in Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, leading to the specialized degree of Bachelor of Science in these subjects. Graduates of these courses may take advanced technical work under the Faculty of Graduate Studies and obtain the degree of Civil Engineer, Electrical Engineer and Mechanical Engineer, respectively.

The College of Engineering is a logical development of the engineering work that was started in 1884 by the Corcoran Scientific School of the University, and its growth is in response to the need and demand for such work in this community. Its ideals are those of the best engineering schools of the country. It aims to provide, in connection with its technical courses, instruction in the subjects of general culture and learning, a knowledge of which should be a part of the equipment of the trained man in every walk of life.

In its material facilities for technical work there has been a satisfactory growth in recent years, a growth far more than is known by those who have given only a cursory study to its work. Its laboratories have received valuable additions each year, and it is believed that the instruction in laboratory, as well as in class-room, compares favorably with that in the larger and richer institutions.

Its student body is drawn from the two constituencies that must be provided for by any institution of higher learning that aims to meet the needs of Washington. It has an increasing number of young men who give their entire time to college work, and who take the full course in the usual four years. It also provides courses at hours adapted to the needs of those who, employed in the Government service or in other occupations, are able to give but part of their time to study, but who have the preparation, the aptitude and the perseverance that makes it possible to engage in gainful occupations at the same time that they are taking college courses. Since all such persons must extend their work over more years than are required of students who give their entire time to their studies, it has been found possible to arrange schedules of classes, without undue repetition of courses, by giving a part of the technical courses in the afternoon, and so alternating the courses assigned for the afternoons from year to year as to provide for the needs of the students, and to give them the subjects in proper sequence. The work done by both of these classes of students is of the highest character, and the College is proud of its student body and of its alumni.

Senior College History

We are the Class of 1910. Our history is like that of other classes that have gone before us. But let us, like them, boast that there never existed such a class as ours. Our boast is more of the future than of the past; for while we have distinguished ourselves a trifle more than previous classes, do we not intend to besmear ourselves with glory in the various fields to which we shall carry our talents? We do, even if we do have to say so ourselves.

In our youth, as Freshmen, we were probably like other Freshmen, although, in our opinion, there never was such an exciting class meeting as our first one. Didn't we feel important when we, together with some of the Sophomores, were arrested for disorderly conduct, and when a newspaper reporter appeared to take notes on the meeting and subsequent fight? We felt that we were in the public eye, indeed, and that all Washington was breathlessly awaiting the outcome of our next meeting. But we were sadly mistaken. At that meeting not even newspaper reporters appeared to ruffle our tranquility.

We felt that fate was against us when we had our class dance, and the medical students, who were giving a smoker the same evening, came and took all our refreshments, and the confectioner refused to let us have any more except for cash, and the musicians refused to leave the building until they were paid. We knew then that college life was not all roses—at least, for Freshmen.

Let us pass lightly over our defeat in foot-ball at the hands of the Sophomore, and still more lightly over the defeat that some of us received at the hands of the professors at the end of the first semester; and let us hasten to brighter things.

As Sophomores, things went more our way. We got the best of the Freshmen, both at their class meeting and on the gridiron.

As Juniors and Seniors, we have conducted ourselves in a becomingly dignified manner, and have set a SPLENDID example to the lower classes, who, we think, have been deeply benefited thereby.

All kinds of talent have been discovered and developed since we entered four years ago. We have orators with whom Cicero is not in it, minstrel men to whom Dockstadter cannot hold a candle, and playwrights who could give George Ade some points, while some of the talent of the class runs to matrimony—but that's a secret.

It isn't exactly the same class that started in September, 1906, which will say farewell to the University in June, 1910. Some of the original members have gone to Yale, Wellesley, and elsewhere, while new members have entered the class from other universities; but the majority of us have gone on together through the four years, working shoulder to shoulder. And now we are about to go forth and find new worlds to conquer. No doubt, we will conquer them as we have everything else that we have met.

SENIOR

The individual history of the Senior Engineers antedates the history of the George Washington University as such, being that of the candidates for B.S., in Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, some of whom were Freshmen in the Corcoran Scientific School of the old Columbian University. The many years of burning midnight oil (just before exams.) and NEVER cutting classes, nor sleeping during recitations, has resulted in the final graduation of a class that has acquired sufficient lore for the construction of such projects as the Panama Canal and the subway under the English Channel. The catalogue of the Class lists the following specifications:

Wm. Webster Burrell, alias "Bull." One of the old guard; thespian, basso profundo, fisherman and canoeist. He acquired the art of warbling when a youngster, by carrying the E flat torch in the Sunbury, Pa., Military Band.

Marion Gilbert Donk alias "Donk," the learned Dutchman who has more degrees attached to his name than space will permit to chronicle. He is a member of the Catfish Navy. Imported from Holland, being the envy of the White Ribboners.

Glen Rupert Lawrence, "Professor." Skater; never known to get anything but A in exams.

Martin J. McPike, alias "Mac" The torchy of the bunch; river pirate Prohibitionist! And Mr. President.

Irving R. Saum, handsome man, minstrel. The one in whom the class put so much faith to trust him with the office of Custodian of the Sheckles.

Hoxie Yost Smith; no relation to Captain John Smith. Ex-subject of the Kaiser Never buys anything unless marked "Made in Germany."

Joseph Henry Waters. Canoeist, ladies' man, matrimonially inclined. Favorite song, "I'm tired of living alone." Has purchased a house.

Earnest Ferdinand Wenderoth, alias "Wendy." Canoeist, sprinter, shooter and of general athletic proclivities. Is now training for Tiddle-de-Winks Team. His favorite summer amusement is picking violets by the light of the silvery moon while canoeing near Sycamore Island.

The above are brief characteristics of the members of the Senior Engineers. Of their qualifications for their chosen professions we will not speak, but by their works ye shall know them. Selah.

Of a certainty "it is better to be an Easy Mark than a Tight Wad," and he who gives away his cigarettes fares even better than he who bums them, for he gets the Coupons and the Base-ball Pictures.

Admitting that "A New Broom Sweeps Clean," look out for the new vacuum cleaners—they might do away with our belongings completely.

Although "The Higher the Fewer," is a good rule, don't expect to find the Gallery empty after the curtain goes up.

"All is not Gold that Glitters," will be readily accepted if you examine the roots of the next Blond hair you see.

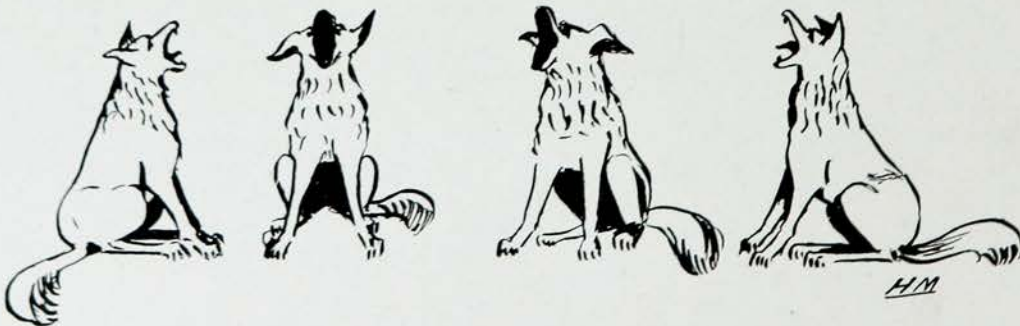

It is not so bad to "Rob Peter to Pay Paul," but you are sure going the limit when you Pay Paul to Rob Peter.

"Silence may give consent," but it doesn't help much when you've just asked Dad for "Fifty Bucks."

"A Cat can look at a King," but that does not excuse every Knave on F Street from piping off the Queens.

Silence may be more eloquent than words, but it does not get anywhere with the professors.

"Time and Tide wait for no Man," although the street cars do for women.

What mocking and scornful negligence!
The track strew'd with the dust of skeletons
By the roadside others disdainfully toss'd.

—Walt Whitman.

She laugh'd a rippling, silvery laugh,
And my hand in hers point'd onward
Toward the rising sun.
The fragrance of her breath
Was in my nostrils, sweet;
The roundness of her arm,
The contour of a shapely neck,
Did entice my weari'd mind,
And I did follow on.

Soon did I tire of her
And long'd to cast her off;
But she would have none of it.
Her charms filled me with loathing.
Yet did she cling to me
And mock my sadden'd being
With hideous, leering taunt.

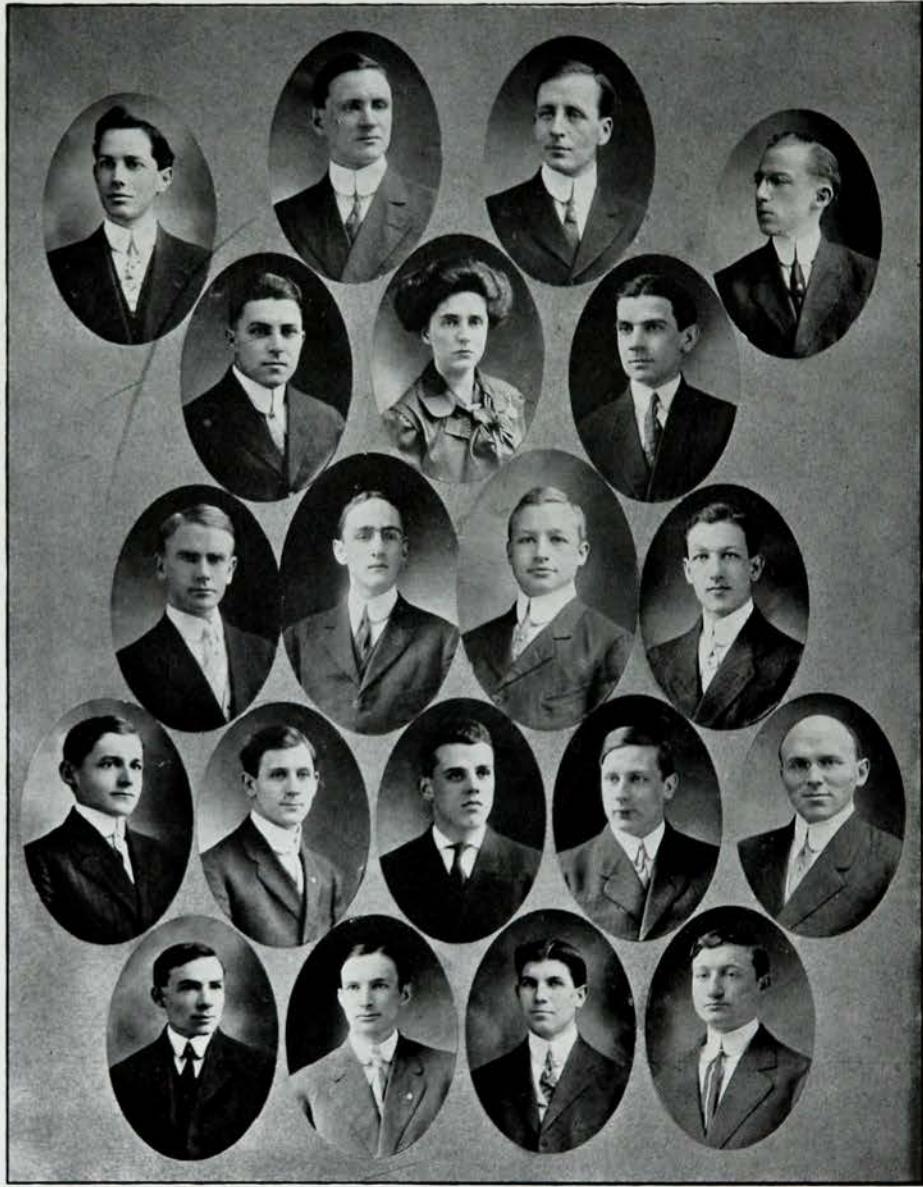

She pass'd, in sombre garments dress'd;
With face of austere mien
And laurel-crowned head.
To ease-loving eye repelling,
She strode in her forward pace,
Her jealous soul not deigning yet
But to cast on me contempt,
And on my companion cast
A look of hatred, mingl'd scorn.

I ran and threw me in the dust
And grovelling, begg'd her pity;
But she thrust me from her, saying:
"Mortal, men call me undying Fame,
But I am not for thee. Return thou
To thy boon-companion Pleasure."
But lo, she died, she too was mortal.

The road to knowledge is a rough one. Along this road comes another class vehicle, as have many before it, but the one in question is a distinct type of conveyance, and we wish to draw a line so as to be recognized from the common band-wagon or hearse. We have resembled in our progress the old-fashioned stage coach lumbering along a mountainous road with lots of dust and grit and a goodly number of passengers, all headed for the same destination, the top of the hill, which can only be reached by degrees or stages.

We all rejoice that we have left "the by-ways and hedges" and are now on the hard-pan of the highway. We rejoice that we are at last able to "make footprints in the sands of Time." Since leaving the cool shade and soft turf but few have been dropped by the cruel Faculty, and for each member lost we have picked up two at each fork, so we do not lack for companionship.

As "there is no royal road to knowledge," we were forced early in October to pass through a rural district where the ignorant populace greatly hampered our progress; and in order to maintain our dignity and preserve peace along the highroad some of our more prominent members were forced to apply to the proper authority for the privilege of dealing with these unlearned bumpkins. This police power cost them $1.00 each. Again, during the month of November, we were assailed by this same horde while passing peacefully through a public park (American League), and by sheer force of numbers we were made to change our course by one (1) point. This we did with much grace, considering the extenuating circumstances.

After this last encounter we were no further molested and were allowed to strike out and travel as fast as we were able when, much to our surprise, we overtook the upper classmen at the Arlington Tavern, where we spent a most delightful evening together. Such rapid progress has never been known of before.

During the first week in February we met with our equinoctial storms, when we were compelled to get down and dig, as we were inclined to stick in the heavy roadway, but with the application of a little elbow grease and much midnight oil to the axles we were able to pull through safely.

In June we will have reached our second plateau and can enjoy the view for a time, but until then we must be content to crack the whip and drive on our way.

Keep your eye on coach number 1912, it will be on time.

Freshman Class History

Now we won't start out by saying that we are the greatest ever because every class before us has said it, and everybody knows it anyway.

We began good and early and held a class meeting on the eleventh of October and started a committee on that most important document, our constitution. After weighty deliberations, we were waylaid by some childishly exuberant Sophs, and but for the presence of some blue-coated minions of the law we would have put them to flight at once. As it was they were punished by being induced to join the chain gang in numbers.

At our next meeting we adopted the constitution and elected officers, and that distinguished body, the dance committee. It was noticeable after this meeting that the children before mentioned had recovered from their playfulness. A little later we met again to arrange for the dance and our championship foot-ball game with the Sophs.

And let us state right here that it was SOME dance! We had a great crowd out and everybody had a swell time. In fact it was such a success that all of the reverend upper classes perceived at once that it would be impossible for any one of them to hope to rank up with us, and so all three clubbed together in the vain hope of outdoing us. And even then we might mention that at our dance fellows didn't have to use burnt matches and such things to fill out programs—we had pencils!

And that foot-ball game! Believe me, we showed our old friends, the Sophs, what a really great class we are. After politely giving them a lead by permitting them to score first (age before beauty, you know) we came from behind and won out, much to the joy of the assembled multitude. As a local paper had it, "The heavier upper classmen were completely outplayed by the brainier and speedier Freshmen." We considered the intelligence of that paper so great that we all subscribed at once.

Later, owing to the withdrawal of our president, Mr. R. T. Frazier, from College, we had another meeting for a new election. The honor went to Mr. Leland S. Briggs. At that meeting, owing to two resignations, Mr. Wong was elected to succeed Mr. H. W. Hodgkins as Sergeant-at-Arms, and Mr. Pevare to succeed Mr. G. W. Hodgkins as class editor for the Hatchet.

STUDENTS, DIVISION OF ARCHITECTURE

Division of Architecture

The familiar sight of new herds of devotees of the immortal architect Scagliola greeted the Old Guard when they wandered back to their annual period of lectures, "rough-house," and the wee hours spent en charette.

Dean Ash was not long in advising these embryonic Palliades what to take and what not to take, whether to work for the conventional "Certificate of Proficiency" or to vainly pursue the much-coveted B.S. degree, the awarding of which is a much-heralded event throughout the entire architectural world. These nouveaux were no sooner started happily on their way than they found themselves orphans, as the fatherly Dean accepted a position on the Faculty of the University of Michigan. This sudden departure was much regretted by them and the Seniors, who were just becoming imbued with the Dean's enthusiastic love for the Renaissance and his inspiring lectures, especially on Italy, which were "perpetual feasts of nectared sweets," almost weeped.

With no Dean to direct, and with Professor Remey on one of his sojourns around this little world of ours, the Faculty was much handicapped, but was later strengthened by the addition of Professor Murphy, lately graduated from the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Paris; Professor Harris, a local practising architect, and Instructors Smith, MacAuley and Hooton. Professor Bibb was made professor-in-charge, and his jolly and aggressive personality has already made itself felt.

Our students, although far removed from the attractive main building, take an active interest in the general affairs of the University. We have in our midst the foot-ball manager, the rifle team manager, and an assistant manager of the track team. On the foot-ball team, Quarterback Porter upheld the honor of the Architectural School, assisted by four others who acted as "scrubs." Twelve students are in the Calcium Club, and, judging from the architectural showing in the cast of last year's show, we feel sure the club would be seriously handicapped without the aid of the architects.

We have a fine bunch of jolly fellows (also two charming young lady students, who necessarily give culture and grace to the school) who work seriously and without regard for time of night, and whose names must surely go down in history as worthy successors to the late lamented White and McKim.

Architectural History

Writing a class history is just as easy as falling off a log; the trouble lies in climbing back on again. The difficulty is somewhat more complicated when there happens to be no log to fall from at the particular time one takes a tumble. Such seems to be the predicament of the class historian at the present time, and it behooves him, therefore, in some mysterious way to produce the log and then all will be smooth sailing.

As you, kind readers, know "we architects" put our thoughts into drawings, not in writing, so you can easily see what a dilemma the historian has been placed in. He wishes to state before going further that the quotation "we architects" means the "noble Seniors," and not "Freshmen" or even "Sophs." They are rude and have a habit of shouting their thoughts aloud, so that we "Seniors" are greatly disturbed in our "studios" and are forced to use harsh but artistic words to subdue their uproar.

This "log" spoken of takes in a three years' course, which, without boasting, has never been equalled in the history of George Washington's Department of Architecture, if not in scholarship, surely in good fellowship. Many have been the times we have seen the sun sink in the west and rise in the east, making the night seem too short with jokes and reminiscences, and that good old song of Phil Hooton's:

We are rambling wrecks of architects,
From old G. W. U.
Stanford White is our patron saint,
Our colors buff and blue.
We push our 2B pencils, we smoke and drink and chew,
But maintain a sphinx-like silence about the other things we do.

Of the bunch that started out in 1907 but eight of us have stuck to the "log." Like all groups we have had some stormy times, but have come out wiser than before, and are now about to separate. The timid Freshmen of three years ago have blossomed into promising architects clad in the armor of knowledge and armed with weapons of T-square, scale and triangle, and will soon go forth to champion, as did knights of old, the cause of the A. I. A.

College days will soon be but a memory. Days of trial perhaps they were, but still the remembrance of them will always remain, because entwined with the trials were pleasures and friendships which can never be forgotten, and will remain charming pictures sketched upon our minds.

POLITICAL

SCIENCE

College of Political Sciences

The College of the Political Sciences was organized as a separate College of the University in February, 1907. It is the natural evolution from a few post-graduate courses in International Law and Diplomacy which had revealed the necessity for a fuller curriculum, more broadly cultural and more highly specialized and practical.

Dr. Richard D. Harlan, son of Mr. Justice John M. Harlan, was appointed to assist Dr. Needham, the President of the University, in the organization of the College. They based their efforts upon two propositions:

First—In at least one important city of the United States there ought to be a special College of Political Sciences, whose entire curriculum should be organized with the one specific end in view of training men, at once broadly and specially, for the public service generally, and for the consular and diplomatic service in particular.

Second—The most strategic location in the United States for such a college is the National Capital, for reasons so obvious to all that they need not be asserted.

With these propositions they started their campaign and their efforts were not without result. The school is now well established and regular courses are given each day, just as in the other departments of the University.

The courses of study extend over a period of four years, and go minutely into the theory and practice of Government (National, State, and Municipal); International Law and Diplomacy, with the duties of Consuls; Economics, including the history and conditions of our industrial life; Transportation, Banking, Finance and Insurance, Tariff Policies and Commercial Treaties, Modern History and the Modern Languages. The degrees given by the College are Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Master of Diplomacy.

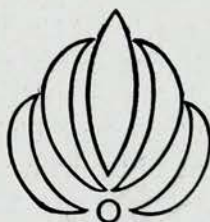

It is primarily a training school for the Consular Service, and the success of the new College is due, in a large measure, to the strong determination and hard work of Dr. Harlan.

Political Science History

"College of the Political Sciences"—a name to conjure with. At its mention there arises a vision of future diplomats, consuls, legislators, statesmen—men who will represent their countrymen at kingly courts abroad, or in legislative halls at home; men who will conquer the tariff problem and abase the trusts; men who will reconcile the Hibernian-American and the Roman-American, and, with the leveling touch of equality, "play the same tune on Italy's hand-organ as on Erin's harp." In short, this branch of G. Washington's knowledge factory is devoted to the training of students in politics, and this year's output consists of eleven Masters of Diplomacy and five Bachelors of Arts. Emerging from the life of the University into the broad arena of life of the universe, these ready-dubbed "masters of diplomacy and arts" must earn anew their titles. And they will do it.

In the three years of its existence our department has justified the faith of its sponsors. It has been demonstrated that, just as the University as an entirety is admirably located to become one of the greatest of America's institutions of learning, and just as it has met an urgent need for non-sectarian cultural education in the nation's capital, so our particular department covers a field of science ideally chosen to make it one of the major departments of an university located at the seat of national government, where domestic legislation and foreign policies may be studied in the making and the machinery of centralized government examined at close range. There is no doubt but that this branch of the institution will grow consistently and rapidly.

Confirming this statement Dean McBain is gratified to announce that the character of the student body has undergone a favorable change during the last year, in that the proportion of regular students entered for degrees, as compared with special students, has greatly increased. The personnel of this student body is interesting. In it is represented every clime, every section of the globe. From England, Germany, Italy, the students hail; from the Arctic steppes of Russia to Cape Colony and Australia, nearly within the Antarctic Circle. The Serb fraternizes with the Austrian in the class-room, and there the representative of the spice islands of Java in the East Indies meets face to face the Cuban of the West Indies. The sons of Chinese and Japanese diplomats are enrolled here; and it has even been whispered that some of the natives of "Darkest Alexandria" have strayed among us.

However, if we ramble in this fashion from Columbia to Cathay we may lose ourselves in the going, so let us call this point the parting of the ways, and, with a mutual wish that 1911 may be as prosperous as 1910 has been, say—farewell.

TEACHER'S COLLEGE

Teachers' College was founded in 1907 as the Division of Education. The School Law of 1906 provided that all applicants for positions in the public schools should pass examinations in Psychology and Pedagogy. In order adequately to meet the demand for instruction in these subjects, and at the same time to provide a broad professional curriculum for the training of teachers, the University established the Division of Education. From the first the splendid enrollment, which has always included a large representation of teachers from the public school service, has afforded conclusive proof of the real demand for professional courses in education.

In the Spring of 1908 the Division of Education was reorganized as the Teachers' College. The work of this College now presupposes two years of general culture study, and is so planned as to enable the student to combine during the Junior and Senior years thorough training for teaching with the most effective concentration upon the subjects he wishes to teach.

The importance of special training for teaching is not yet as universally recognized as it should be. As with all comparatively new things, there are prejudices and mistaken conceptions to be overcome. But progress has been remarkably rapid. It is hardly more than a decade since the study of education as a science and as a great public function was first introduced into our universities, yet to-day there are 171 colleges and universities in which there are either departments or colleges of education. This indicates that the educational world is rapidly awakening to the fact that teaching is professional work, and that it cannot be done with the maximum of efficiency without special training. It will not be long before professional training will be as much a matter of course for the teacher as for the physician. In 1908 the National Educational Association included in one of its resolutions this statement: "The idea that anyone with a fair education can teach school is gradually giving away to the correct notion that teachers must make special preparation for the vocation of teaching."

Quite apart from the higher satisfactions afforded by all educational work, the administration of large educational systems offers to ambitious young men positions of great responsibility, which call for administrative talents of a high order, and promise in return commensurate compensation and high social and professional standing.

The Law School which was established in 1865 is the oldest in the city, and was the first school in the country to confer the degree of LL.M. Formerly the school was conducted on the night-school plan, but within the past few years the courses have been transferred to the morning and the late afternoon. This wise arrangement makes the school available both to those who are unoccupied during the day and who can give their whole time to study, as well as to those employed in the Government Departments and who, in consequence, are able to devote only the late afternoons to the work.

The school grants the degrees of L.B., LL.B., LL.M., M.P.L., and J.D. On the Faculty are found Justice John Marshall Harlan, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; Judge Stanton J. Peele, of the Court of Claims; Judge Wendell Phillips Stafford, Associate Judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; James Brown Scott, member of The Hague Conference Committee; William Reynolds Vance, the Dean, author of texts on Insurance; E. C. Brandenburg, author of Brandenburg on Bankruptcy, and E. G. Lorenzen, author of a case book on the Conflict of Laws. Among our many distinguished alumni may be mentioned G. B. Cortelyou, a member of Roosevelt's Cabinet, and Frank Hitchcock, the present Postmaster-General, as well as Representative Boutell, J. J. Darlington and A. S. Worthington, leaders of the Washington Bar.

Masters' History

Has anybody seen the court-clerk,
C-L-E-R-K-,
Has anybody seen the court-clerk,
Seen him going in or coming out,
For his hair is curly, and his eyes are blue,
And he's never there until we're through,
Has anybody seen the court-clerk,
The clerk with the big bass cry.

In our early days, there was much to learn. One of the first things was that our names did not appear on the Roll-of-Honor until a call had been made at a certain office around the corner and a deposit left to insure good behavior. Personal bonds were not accepted. The advantage of this process was that it entitled us to stand up when our names were called and say, "Well, generally speaking, yes; but in some cases the contrary holds good." Which answer, it may be stated, covers a multitude of sins.

In class many interesting and heated discussions took place. Not the least among these was that of "the function of the ear." Most people, upon being asked, would say, and quite naturally, that an ear is something with which to hear. Certainly one cannot see with an ear. And yet it is recorded that one of those at the bar of the court in question urged that "the ear" was for supporting pokers, frying-pans and the like. It is not the present purpose to settle the question but rather to diffuse education by the interchange of ideas, and, if inclined in this direction, you are invited to ask Professor Church whether he will take judicial notice of the fact that an ear has a function. If he will not do so, then "What is the function of the ear?"

It is proper here to express a few kind words in memory of the two fair maids who came once and appeared no more; and a few remarks, further, in honor of the heroine, who, in personification of women's rights, and in defiance of the call of domestic happiness, has braved the stormy sea of association with a group of embryo l—yers, and remained in our midst, even unto the end.

All is now over, and as we look back it is with confidence and pleasure, and as we look forward it is with fear and trembling. But so long as this country exists there will be a Patent Office; so long as there is a Patent Office there will be laws; so long as there are laws there will be disputes; so long as there are disputes there will be people to change the laws; so long as they continue to change the laws there will be few people who know anything about the laws; and so long as this condition exists there is hope for us.

Senior Law History

The Class of 1910 has a history replete with doings from the day the college doors swung open back in the year 1907. Since that time it has shared copiously in the joys of the University, and has had troubles all its own. Of course, we are not going to tell what the troubles have been, because this is not an obituary. Cicero, in his memorable treatise on "Why Fussers Fuss," said that the Class of 1910 would "commence" about the first week in June. What he meant is left to conjecture, but a fair interpretation of the words seems to convey the impression that he meant they would "commence to review," that is, such of them as failed to survive the task of moulding "Property" into some shape resembling one of the first four letters of the alphabet.

The Class Smoker, held on December 15, was one grand success, from start to finish, and we have Messrs. Brantley, Kitselman, Holmes, Van Vleck and Holcombe to thank for thawing us out with a good supply of eats and the usual accompaniment. Calvert tore off the lid by rendering a classical ballad entitled "The Motion to Squash for Me." President Ford, who is always the kingpin when presiding over a feast, singled out Justice Van Orsdel for one of the first victims, and the Judge greatly enhanced his popularity by declaring his class in Water Rights and Irrigation to be the banner class of the school; that the fellows never missed a lecture, and ever wept for more work. Some of his most apt pupils, of whom Professor Lorenzen was not one, then proceeded to demonstrate that they know something about practical irrigation, but not after the Water Rights method.

In a fatherly talk, Dean Vance volunteered the information that his love for the Class of 1910 had become so strong that he could no longer endure the hardships of guiding a new class through the pitfalls of a "Property" course without its attractive and inspiring presence, and next year would set his bait for the unsuspecting freshies at Old Eli. We are sorry to see him go, and it is needless to say that he has our sincere wishes for his success.

That the members of the Class of 1910 are destined to become great lawyers is evidenced by the fact that, with their limited experience, they have succeeded in completely overloading the Moot Court with technical pleadings, and the clerk is howling for an increase in salary. Bill Simmons says, "Never forget to appeal, boys, or at least give notice of appeal; it helps to let you down easy and lessens the feeling of success in the bosom of your opponent. Never miss a chance to show your contempt for the assumed learning of the old lawyers, and always insist upon a large retainer as evidence of good faith. Have your friends on hand at the trial to serve as jurors, and then wade in; bang away; make the fur fly. Speak on every occasion, and insist that your Fourth of July oration be preceded by the mellifluous strains of the village band to the tune of "Hail, the Conquering Hero Comes."

There is one more lost cause to cherish! Those who fought to exercise their political genius in the proud seclusion of a separate organization, and who yielded up homes, sweethearts and tuition (the latter invariably in advance) to keep unsullied the extra "L" to their degrees, have been disbanded and benevolently assimilated by the Afternoon Students. And while the brothers of the Twilight Hours have proved magnanimous conquerors, yet the vanquished cannot quite forget the stirring days of last year when Curl marshaled them against Harlan, Peele and Monnet, and they still cherish memories of how they captured countless "A's" from Earnest; how they were picked off one by one by Vance's sharpshooters; how doggedly they stood up against Thurston and his policy of mental attrition; and how easily they outpointed the masterly inactivity of Blair.

Reconstruction, however, under the administration of Warren J. Davis has lost its sting for both sides, and in consequence the Mason and Dixon Line as established last year has been rubbed out and the morning and afternoon sections of the class have been united.

This happy reunion was celebrated, and incidentally many thirsts were quenched at the Class Smoker which, under the direction of Tilton, C. J., proved to be a banquet of no mean proportions. The menu was beyond cavil; the arrangements beyond criticism. To such dizzy heights of eloquence did the speakers ascend that it became evident that oratory is not yet dead, but that it ought to be. The smoker also served as a fitting initiation of Dean Vance as an honorary member of the class. While it may be true that the class is neither the largest nor the most brilliant in the University, yet it enjoys the real distinction, shared by no other, of having as an honorary member the Dean of the Department. It is a pleasure to feel that in spite of our obvious shortcomings the Dean was not ashamed to have his name enrolled as of the Class of '11.

A Law Student's Appeal

"Love me little, love me long"—
You can't say, dear, I do wrong,
When I stay at home each night
And these horrid abstracts write.
For it's duty I must do
'Ere I dare to spoon with you.

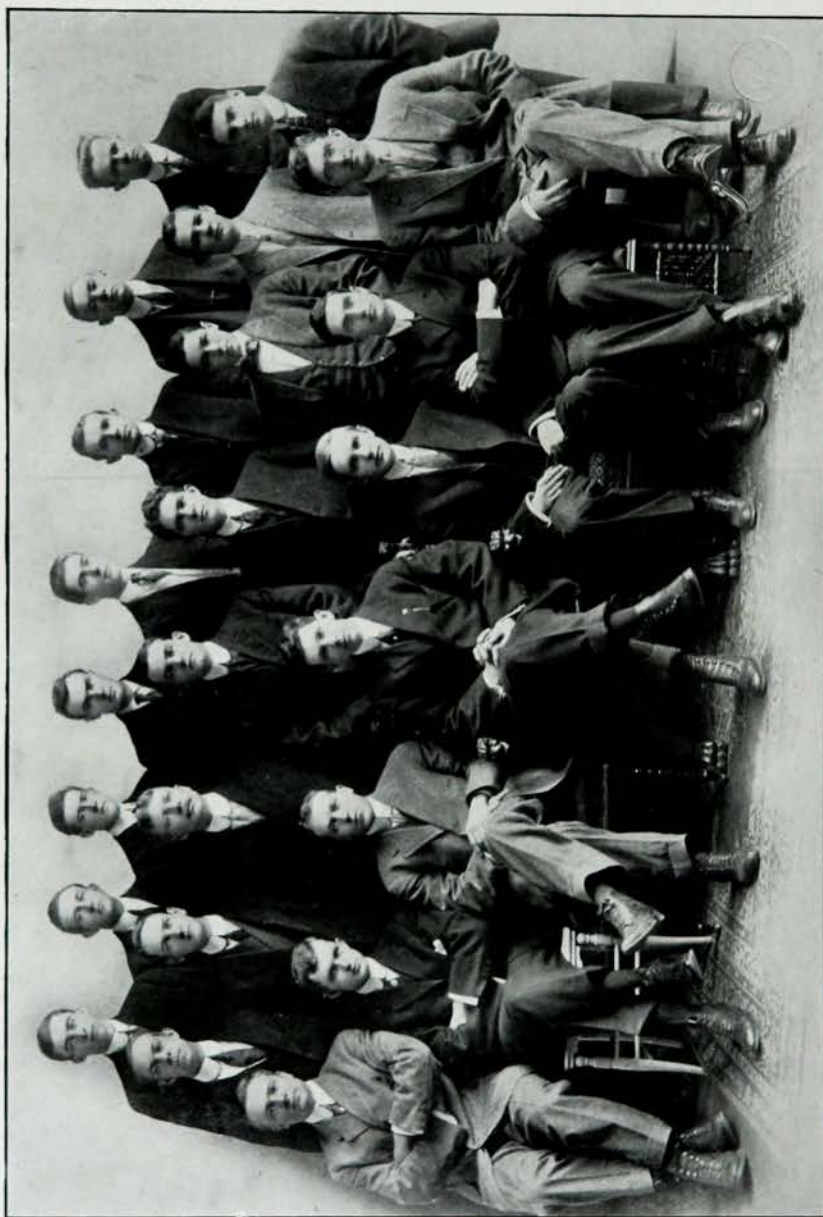

"Love me little, love me long—
You can't make your love too strong,"
For your loving glance I yearn
While these rules I strive to learn.
No matter if I do feel blue
I must study, boo, hoo, hoo.

"Love me little, love me long"—
Wait till summer rolls along,
Then these books I'll cast aside
And be ever by your side.
In our little birch canoe
We'll be lovers through and through.

There may be those who think we should style ourselves Freshmen. We must differ with them, for we believe it to be our prerogative to take the name given us by our Faculty — First Year Law. The term Freshman brings with it nothing new, for many of us have endured that charming appellation throughout one year of undergraduate activity either here or in other institutions.

We come to George Washington with the conviction that we know no law. We have discovered that we not only have it to learn, but that we are occasionally found to make new law, and that in large amounts. However, we are confident that three years of study will discourage us in this manufacture and aid us in accepting that law which has the dignity of age and precedent.

We have abundant opportunity for making new law, as our ranks are made up from the North, East, South and West, and we represent almost every vocation, not professional, in life. Some of us have even become gray in our work. Is it not natural then that each will attempt to twist the law to conform with his individual ideas as developed by his former habits and manner of living? But with our making new laws, we are gradually becoming reconciled to the authorities and are consulting them more and more as time goes on.

Our class roll will tell for us that which we do not care to say for ourselves, and the accompanying visual evidence of our appearance may say for us that which we would wish unsaid. However, with them as references we leave ourselves to your indulgence until we, as a class, have reached the goal of our endeavor in this institution.

The college year 1909-'10 brought forth a happy bunch of 75 fellows, all eager to become legal lights, and enthusiastic in their determination to make their coming Alma Mater the greatest of the day. After a few weeks of timid life, and waiting for points from our elder "brothers in law"—the Sophomores—we decided that they were dead ones, and that we would have to launch our little boat without assistance into the unknown shoals.

We elected Eugene W. Bond, President; C. F. R. Ogilby, Jr., Vice-President; Birch Helms, Secretary; Lester L. Schnare, Treasurer, and J. Paul Oren, Class Editor. Enough life was shown at the time of the election of the class officers to prove that the fellows are determined to make the class of 1912 the strongest ever graduated from this institution in class spirit as well as in the interpretation of legal questions.

A short time after the organization of the class, and after becoming well acquainted with the Faculty, as well as the class mascot—"Dobbin," the spirit of class stunts struck the fellows.

An inaugural smoker was pulled off in the Assembly Hall of the Y. M. C. A. building in December. Almost every member attended, and a surprising abundance of wit and accomplishment, supplementing the extraordinary serious headwork shown in the class-room, was demonstrated. Among the invited guests present were Dean Vance, Prof. Thurston, Prof. Mumma, and Prof. Lorenzen—Justice Harlan dissenting. The members of the Faculty entertained in splendid style, telling many stories and giving excellent advice as to the best methods of studying law, which quickened the fellows to the friendly feeling held by the Faculty toward them. Vice-President Ogilby was the toastmaster of the affair, and proved a ready wit. It was the coming-out party of the Freshmen quartette, and they surely made a big hit chopping off those new Freshmen songs. President Bond proved himself an able executive officer, and responded to the remarks of the Faculty in a neatly worded little speech. After the more or less formal part of the smoker had passed, the fellows handed out some great stories, which made every one feel a common interest in the other man, and soon the bunch were well acquainted. After a buffet supper the first function of the Freshman Class was brought to an end.

President Bond has instituted a number of new devices to raise the spirit of fellowship. Monthly dinners are held immediately after class, at one of the down-town cafés, for the purpose of getting the bunch together in order to swap stories, talk over law, and get better acquainted, without the loss of much time from work.

It remains to be seen what the Class of 1912 will do, but if present indications are reliable they may be expected to raise a smoke before many moons.

MEDICINE

The Departments of Medicine and Dentistry

The Medical School, which is the seventeenth in the chronological order of establishment in the United States, became a part of the University in 1825. At first the school, like many others in the country at that time, gave only a two years' course of five months each. The course was lengthened from time to time until it now comprises four years of eight months each. The University Hospital was, in 1898, made a part of this department, which increased the facilities for actual practice as well as for teaching. The Medical Department has been for several years a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges, and its students and graduates have the advantages arising from such membership.

The laboratories are well equipped and modern, the library is large and comprehensive, and the pathological museum contains a great many valuable and interesting specimens.

The department numbers among its faculty some distinguished authorities, among whom may be mentioned the noted surgeon, J. Ford Thompson, M.D., and the newly appointed dean, William Cline Borden, M.D.

Washington opens to the student of medicine the unrivalled resources of the Congressional Library and of the Surgeon-General's Library, which latter is the most complete medical library in the world.

The Dental School was organized in 1887. Its requirements for the degree of D.D.S. have been increased from those of two sessions of five months each to three full years of study. Many of the instructors are leading practitioners of the city, and in every respect this school ranks with the best in the country.

The hospital is an integral part of the educational establishment of the University. Its wards are a charity to the poor, hundreds of whom yearly find in them the kindly nursing and skillful care that brings them back to health. In accordance with the medical ordinance passed by the Board of Trustees last May the hospital has been more completely correlated with the Medical College. All the professors teaching clinical branches have been made chiefs of their clinics in the hospital, thus making the clinical facilities of the hospital directly available for teaching.

Along with the development of medicine and the education of the physician, there has also developed the necessity of the trained nurse as an assistant in the care and treatment of the graver diseases and casualties, and this function the hospital also discharges in its School for Nurses.

To the interest and generous offices of its Board of Lady Managers, to their devotion of time, effort, patience, and charity, the hospital is most largely indebted for the making up of its fiscal deficiencies. The students' ball held each year at the New Willard, under the auspices of the Board of Lady Managers, is given for the benefit of the hospital.

The total capacity of the hospital is 125, with 40 rooms for the reception and treatment of private cases. It is interesting to note that, of the total work done by the hospital, over 13 per cent is charity, for which the hospital receives no compensation whatever. In addition to this charity work done in the wards, during the past year over 1000 cases received free treatment in the dispensary attached to the hospital. It would be gratifying if a knowledge of this volume of charitable work done in the institution would interest those who are able to assist the work financially.

Senior Medical History

The early Autumn of 1906 found us—eds and co-eds—forty strong, at the gates of our Alma Mater thirsting for medical lore. She took us in, with the assistance volunteered by the exuberant Sophs. Who can forget that first banquet and the stir created by Scanlon and Derrick with their respective capacities for talk and refreshments? When the fog rolled away on election night, Peyton was president. The jar of the marks in histology and the grind of the long hours at dissecting were somewhat softened by the kindly attitude and interest of the Freshmen's idol, the professor of anatomy, as exemplified by such statements as "Now, I don't see any necessity for bothering you about this particular detail, except that some State Board may ask you about it." We promptly arose from our equanimity upon the advent of the new professor of physiology, untried so far as G. W. U. classes were concerned, but most of us, including the man who told the said professor that Kirke's text-book on physiology was wrong, made our peace with him in the Spring or early Fall, and did our best to make good on exams. in chemistry. The blow-out at the restaurant on Pennsylvania Avenue near 14th Street rounded out the year, but already some of the fellows had realized that their desire for medical work was not so great as for other things.

On reassembling in the Fall of 1907 we missed Dulaney, Kissileff, Ryan, Walker and Wolfram, but gladly welcomed Beauchamp, Juriej, Kerby, Klingerman, Piburn, Sinclair and Williams. If any but a co-ed of unquestioned veracity had recorded in the history of the second year that our valiant crew had permitted the verdant Freshies to go uninitiated, we should have believed the historian mistaken and called him to personal account for the slander. Careful consideration and balloting on election night resulted in John J. McLoone filling the presidential chair. Any internal strife that might have existed was lost sight of in the common struggle with the new problems before us, especially the new incumbent of the Chair of Bacteriology and Pathology who seemed inclined to "goose-egg" the entire class. We found time, though, for a smoker at Reuter's, returning early to the delights of materia medica, hygiene and organic and physiological chemistry—but let us not forget the block of physical diagnosis upon which some good toes were stubbed. Vacation time with its opportunities for rest and recreation was a blessed boon.

When the roll was called at the opening of the session of 1908-'09, Medley, Norris and Silberstrom were among the missing, while such men as Andrews, Beale, Barrett, Glennan, Marriott and Rozelle stepped in to fill up the ranks. We promptly became so absorbed in practice, surgery, obstetrics and dietetics, both theoretical and practical, that we forgot to have a banquet—or was it because we feared spontaneous combustion of some of our members from the ingestion of food or drink too high in caloric value? We paused long enough to manifest some interest in the class election, the culmination of which interest was the selection of Clifton E. Young as president. At the expense of a great deal of energy and some avoirdupois on our part, the professors were persuaded to let most of us "by" in the subjects mentioned, as well as gynecology, therapeutics, medical jurisprudence, surgical pathology (Ugh!) and clinical microscopy. When the last examination had passed into history we sought rejuvenation at a time-honored hostelry on the "Aynoo," where it is rumored some of the fellows experienced pronounced dilatation of the pupils, hypersecretion in the lachrymal gland, and preternatural mobility of the mandible, with slight inco-ordination of the muscles of the lower extremities.

When we marched up to the judges stand for the final lap, Amoss, Beale, Barrett, Glennan, Marriott, Paige, Piburn, Rougeou, Rozelle and Scanlon were not in line, but Arnold, Chichester, Frey, Machler, Willis, Sullivan, Sorensen and Mata were ready to join us in the race. Hardly had we settled down to business when the possibilities of an exciting session on election night served to distract attention from studies for a time. Rumors of "slates" and "steam-rollers" brought every class member to the polls, where, after the votes were in and counted, it was found that all the rights, privileges and honors, as well as the duties pertaining to the distinction of Senior Class President, had been thrust upon "Jack" Hoover. Experience had taught us that each year required more study and the Senior work is proving the rule—literally intensified "boning." Examinations came early and often, but from reports already in, the class is making good again this year. A professor high in the councils of the school has told the class that it is the best that has come before him, BUT——. We're hoping that the coveted sheepskin will be ours in June.

It would not be a fair history to close without paying tribute to the sterling qualities of the class members who have stood together so loyally, who have labored so industriously, many of them under the most adverse conditions, whose friendships are of the truest, and whose places cannot be filled by new-made friends in the school of life. Here's to the Hatchet Class of 1910—may all her members graduate!

The Bridge of Years

By FRANK M. BICKNELL

When I was six and she was four, the midge,
We used to play about the old red bridge
And often dig in sand for half the day;
'Twas then we "made it spades," as one might say.

We quarreled fiercely once, as I recall:
She said a word—'twas not polite at all;
She said it thrice to make her meaning clear
We came to blows, we "made it clubs," I fear.

Long afterward we played at bridge—I lost,
Lost all, yet played on, reckless of the cost;
Then asked her, with the courage of despair,
"A diamond may I make it—solitaire?"

She said a word; she said it very low
And only once; it didn't sound like "No."
I was—and—am—the happiest of men,
For we have always "made it hearts" since then.

Junior Medical, 1911

While we realize fully the great importance of the subjects embraced in the first two years of our career as students of medicine, and recall with pleasure the many pleasant associations of our Freshman and Sophomore years, yet when we think of the difficult subjects encountered there and the long periods of tedious laboratory work we had to undergo we cannot help congratulating ourselves on successfully reaching our Junior year.

The nature of our work has been entirely fundamental and preparatory to the courses now being pursued, so that we are just now enabled to see the application of the truth and principles learned in the earlier part of our course.

Along with the interesting and important study of the many pathological conditions of mankind, in the wards and clinics of the different hospitals of the city, has come a realization of the great responsibility which we are to assume in the not distant future.

Our class, while not as large as some which have gone before us, is fully up to the standard in all other particulars. We have lost several of our esteemed classmates by resignation or transfer, but we have gained as many from other schools and welcome them into our class.

It has been the custom of the class to hold a banquet after the finals of the second term, but as yet no class event has been held this year. It is believed that a banquet will be held soon. We take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the kindly interest shown by the professors with whom we have been associated.

"Our numbers may be few
But all our hearts are true."

Although we have had some join our class and a number leave, we who remain are gaining new enthusiasm as we go, both for medicine and for George Washington University. We are true to our cause, and as we have lost only one of our number during the year we believe that we will all fight it out to the sweet moment when our "M.D.'s" are presented to us. And it seems true of us, though

"— men may come,
And men may go,
(That we) go on forever."

One feature of our year was a reception given to the class by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph during the Summer vacation. We gathered under their hospitable roof and were royally entertained. As the moon was bright and the evening cool our class gathered, later in the night, on the lawn of our hosts and gave them a serenade.

Our annual smoker this year was as grand a success as last year. One big difference could be seen. Our tales were merrier, our laughter heartier, our songs and praises for George Washington University were stronger than ever before. So may our University and our class go on prospering.

Sophomore Medical

The reunion of the "Carnation" Class as Sophomores this year was attended with the usual demonstrations of good fellowship shown by the members of the Medical Class of 1912.

We are proud to say that the spirit of unity and friendship has become one of the most striking characteristics of our class, and we feel justified in quoting the old proverb, that "Where there is unity there is strength."

The first event of our Sophomore history was the election of officers for the year 1909-1910. In this we were most successful, and have at our head some of our very best.

It is fitting here to say a word of commendation of our class president, George Sparr Luckett, who has at all times done his utmost for the good of the class as a whole as well as for each individual member. He has the admiration and respect of us all.

The honor system which was adopted last year has been carried out to perfection, and leaves not the slightest ground for doubt or criticism.

The mid-year examinations are a thing of the past, and most of us were lucky enough to pull through, although organic and physiological chemistry had most of us pretty badly scared.

Last Spring a base-ball team was organized, and made a very creditable showing. This season the outlook for a first-class team is very encouraging.

The June examinations are yet before us, but we are all hoping for the best. To the fortunate will fall the dignity and troubles of a Junior Medic.

DEPARTMENT OF —

DENTISTRY

Senior Dental History

The Class of 1910 started its dental career with twenty enthusiastic Freshmen, and it was not long before we were delving into the deep mysteries of anatomy, histology and chemistry. We can all recall the timidity with which we first entered the dissecting room (with the dozen or more subjects stretched out on the tables in grim silence), but the way we cut up after becoming thoroughly acclimated was something awful.

The boys had the true class spirit, as was evidenced by the fact that they attended all the college affairs in a body. Before the year was over two smokers had been held, and class yells, a class sweater and class design were adopted.

It was not until the beginning of the second semester that we started on dental work; then began the laying out of our hard-earned dollars and cents for supplies, and the purchasing of such supplies had not stopped up to the present writing.

Only six reported on October 1, 1908, to enter the Junior Class, and we were indeed sorry to see our ranks depleted to such an extent. However, the fact that we were a small number strengthened the bonds of friendship, and there is nothing now that one member will not do for another.

It was at the beginning of this year that Dean Lewis gave way to our esteemed professor in operative dentistry, Dr. Henry C. Thompson, and the latter obtained for us many needed improvements. We were glad, too, to make the acquaintance of Dr. Allen S. Wolfe, under whose guidance we were taught the making of crowns, german silver plates, aluminum and cast dentures. The boys all got busy in the infirmary, and many were the works of art turned out under the guidance of our genial Dr. Bassett.

Toward the close of the season, on account of impaired health, Dr. Thompson resigned as Dean, and our able professor in prosthetic dentistry and orthodontia, Dr. J. Roland Walton, then professor in crown and bridge work and orthodontia, was appointed to fill the vacancy. He has won the esteem and admiration of all the students.

The third year saw the six of us together again. In the meantime several changes had taken place in the Faculty. Dr. Lewis was with us no more, and Dr. Walton took his chair. Dr. Wolfe was given charge of the crown and bridge work for the Senior Class, and Dr. Lawrence, whom we then had the pleasure of meeting for the first time, was placed in charge of the prosthetic technic. A new system of teaching was inaugurated, and so well is the plan working that our class has turned out more work than any other class that preceded it.

Our course is now drawing to a close, and we all hope to be there at the finish, ready to start on our careers as dentists, every man determined to be an honor to the profession.

JUNIOR

MTT

After vacation stories had been told and hand shaking was over, our class began its annual work anew. We met on Wednesday evening November 10, in one of our class-rooms, at the Medical and Dental Building for reorganization. All the class members reported having spent a happy and prosperous vacation; some had remained in the city, while others had returned to their homes in the country. A few of our classmen, hoping to better themselves, have entered other schools this year. Although we cannot see their viewpoint, we extend to them our best wishes for a successful year in their new surroundings.

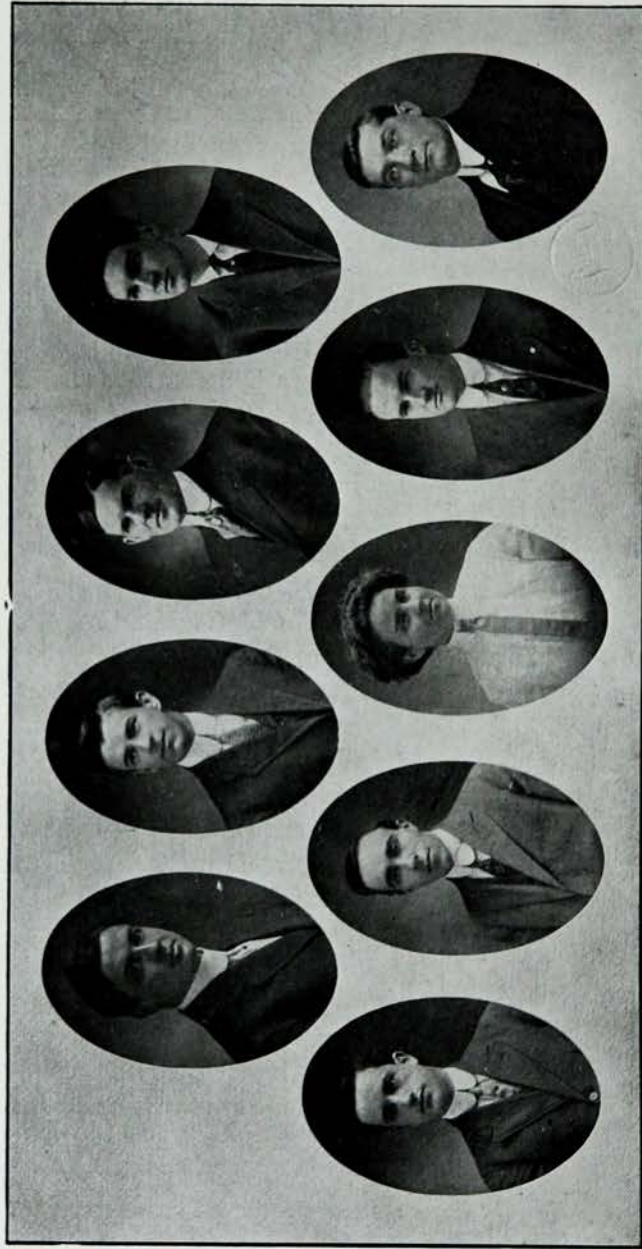

The gathering, after discussing minor subjects, and telling a few stories, proceeded to the business in hand and elected the following officers: President, Lloyd Y. Beers; Vice-President, Eugene R. Stone; Secretary, Homer E. Wood; Treasurer, Dominico Sandoval; Editor, John McCausland.

Under the direction of our new Dean, Dr. J. Roland Walton, who was formerly Dean of the National Dental School, and who is commonly known to the students as "Napoleon," a marked improvement has been shown this year.

Dr. A. C. Tompson, our long-trying and well-known Professor of Operative Dentistry, is now in full swing with his lectures.

Dr. J. Winslow Taylor is carrying us right along in Prosthetic Technics, and Dr. C. L. Odor is again with us in Operative Dentistry.

In the infirmary, under the direction of our Demonstrator, Dr. Chas. Bassett, most of us have already recovered from the stage fright caused by our first patient. Here Mr. Stone has already established his reputation for making plates and has become an authority on an antidote for carbolic acid applied to the lips. President Beers (Blondy), the fellow who is always looking for an argument, promises to make a name for himself for his skill in the art of filling a tooth cavity, as his practice is showing among the Georgetown lassies. Mr. Wood, with his mechanical arm and determined manner is marked to establish himself as a good man to handle the forceps and apply the Spanish proverb, "To cure sick teeth lay them in the sun," which is surely an effective remedy. Our Filipino friend, Mr. Sandoval, is showing up in his treatment of abscess cases, and proving his power to cure people of swelled heads. As treasurer, he is a second J. P. Morgan at holding on to all the money he gets, although he sleeps well over the responsibility.

FRESHMAN DENTAL CLASS

After many futile attempts the class finally "got together" in December and duly elected officers. It wasn't long, however, before our President, Mr. Freeman, was forced to quit us, and this made another meeting necessary. After numerous trials and tribulations, political speeches and lobbying, Mr. Robert C. Fowler was finally chosen to lead us through the Freshman year.

No one but a Freshman can understand our feelings when we matriculated and realized that we were "college men." As we look back and review the way in which we revered and almost feared the upper classmen, it appears ludicrous; but these feelings were soon dispelled and we now realize our extreme importance, in fact, we think we are "the whole push." Why shouldn't we? Haven't we the best looking bunch of young men ever gotten together? Dr. Lawrence says we are the best class he has ever had in prosthetic quizzes. And about Dr. Formad in histology, well, we are too modest to say what he thinks, and sad to relate, poor Dr. Owen was blinded by the brilliancy of our anatomy papers. If you do not believe the editor just wait until we hang out our shingles (D.D.S.) and then see who's "it."

A Few Reasons Why We Flunk

Misusing our "flasks."

Spooning with our "cases."

Knowing things but not being able to tell them.

The singular forgetfulness of professors who think that you have nobody's work to do but theirs.

Ignorance, pure and simple.

National College of Pharmacy

This department of the University was originally a private institution chartered by Congress in 1871. In 1906 the college became a part of the educational system of The George Washington University, under the charter of the University granted by Congress March 3, 1905, providing for the organization of affiliated colleges.

The work of the college embraces courses in chemistry, materia medica, pharmacy, microscopy, mercantile pharmacy, and pharmaceutical jurisprudence. Three years are required for the completion of the prescribed course for which the degree of Phar. D. is given.

History

When the gong sounded on September 26, 1907, there might have been seen two young ladies and about twenty-five young men entering the lecture rooms of the Pharmacy Building. Having been seized with a desire to learn to be druggists, we started out fully determined to know it all and be full-fledged when we finished our school career. Of course, we have attained our ambitions. Never will we forget that first election when we selected a most competent man to steer our ship, and never will we forget the long nights of boning and cramming through which we have passed. We are sorry to leave but are happy to know that we are going forth fully equipped to conquer new worlds.

Our class contains no athletic stars, but yet we did contribute a few to the track and foot-ball teams, and we are proud of them. We have held together through three years of hard work and study and feel that we are to be congratulated on losing so few. When June rolls around and we all receive our degrees, we will feel amply repaid for our trouble and worry.

Junior Pharmacy

Well, well, here we are again after a year of hard and earnest study and with bright prospects ahead for the ensuing year.

The class was organized and elected officers October 4, 1909. Most of the old faces appeared in the assemblage when the roll was called. A few of last year's members having left us, the class is somewhat smaller. However, next year our ranks may be brought back to the old figure by the addition of delinquent seniors if the mid-year examinations are any criterion. We regret the loss of Messrs. Colomb and McCann, the former having gone into business at St. Albans, Vermont, and the latter having gone to New York. The class is honored with one new member this year, Miss Gail E. Nelson, formerly a student of the University of Oklahoma.

The class enjoyed a much-needed rest during the Xmas holidays, a number of the students leaving the city to see the "old folks at home."

On January 5, Professor Remington gave an interesting lecture relative to the revision of the Pharmacopœia. The lecture was largely attended by the students and alumni. The class did not give a dance this year, but expects to have a smoker before the end of the term.

One interesting and valuable study has been added to our list, viz., Microscopy. In view of the attention that is now directed to the purity of foods and drugs, this study will be invaluable to us in the future, when we have obtained our "sheep-skins" and started out on the difficult path of life.

We will close this history with the statement that the class has the best record of attendance of any class in our division for several years. We are going to try to maintain this record throughout the year.

Freshman Pharmacy History

On September 30, 1909, the class held its first meeting. Exactly one week later they elected officers to serve for one school year. On October 20, 1909, Mr. Bennett was appointed Chairman of a committee of three to draw up a Constitution and By-Laws. It was subsequently turned in at the next meeting and accepted unanimously by the class.

The next business to be accomplished was the selection of a class pin. Our honorable friend, Mr. Walker, was accidentally chosen Chairman of the committee of three, and much to our sorrow, as is usually the case when class pins are selected, one of the generous assortment he submitted to the class was unanimously adopted.

On January 3, 1910, Mr. Gorsuch, otherwise known as "Pap," was appointed Chairman of a committee of three to arrange for a box party, followed by a banquet, to be given the first week in February.

College of Veterinary Medicine

The organization of a College of Veterinary Medicine under the charter of The George Washington University was authorized by the Board of Trustees on March 17, 1908. The great demand for the services of trained veterinarians by the Federal and State governments and the increasing importance of veterinary science in municipal hygiene show the need of the development of this branch of medical science in Washington in a regularly organized college under University auspices. The headquarters, libraries, laboratories and experimental farms of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture are located in the District of Columbia, so that students of the College of Veterinary Medicine may keep closely in touch with the most recent investigations in veterinary science. The Administration Building and two hospital buildings of the College are located at 2113-2115 Fourteenth Street, N. W.

The hours of instruction are so arranged that clerks in Government employ can take the course.

JUNIOR VETERINARY CLASS

JUNIOR VETS

Junior Veterinary Class History

"We, the undersigned, present ourselves here for the purpose of absorbing and evolving work of a higher class and of a better grade for the ensuing year."

These were the sentiments which bespoke the attitude of our class when, at the beginning of the present college year, we reunited to find ourselves standing firmly on an educational level just immediately above that one along which we plodded a year ago. We really feel as though this new "plodding ground" will come up to all of our expectations, but at the same time we are not going to lose sight of the fact that there is still a higher level, properly succeeding the present one, which is well worth the struggle necessary for its attainment. A year from now it is our desire to be standing just as firmly on this higher elevation, the crowning feature of which is the receiving of our degree of D.V.M., as we are standing to-day, Juniors of the infant department of this University.

While we are aware that there are a few missing from the number originally constituting the first veterinary class under the régime of George Washington University, we are proud indeed to relate that twenty-eight of the original "herd" are still under the same controlling influences.

Our greatest pride, however, is evidenced by the fact that the general standard of the veterinarian is now considered to be on a scientific equality with the high standards set and maintained by our foremost scientific investigators. This, of course, is perfectly proper, and extremely gratifying to those interested, when we take into account the large and varied field which the study of this profession embraces. While it will not be feasible to mention here and give due credit to the many subjects for investigation included under this head, yet I will call to mind two or three of the most important which could not be otherwise than of infinite concern to everyone, as their significance and consequence are both so conspicuously associated with the well-being of the whole human race, viz., investigations leading to the control and possible elimination of certain infectious diseases occurring among our domestic and food-producing animals, primarily with a view of preventing the transmission of these diseases from the animal to the human being; the increasing importance and growing necessity of veterinary science in municipal hygiene; general supervision over our milk and meat supplies, etc.

FRESHMAN VETERINARY CLASS

Freshman Veterinary History

The Freshman Veterinary Class has no apology to offer for the picture which appears in THE CHERRY TREE, other than to remark that all the members of the class were not present when the picture was taken. The Messrs. McClure, learning that there were some specimens of the equine tribe over in Alexandria that they had not seen, spent their time in acquiring knowledge of the horse over in the old Virginia city when they might have been present to grace their class photograph.

The class is not a large one, so far as numbers are concerned, but, like Sambo in the Sunday comic section, it makes a big noise, a noise which sounds like perseverance and a determination to push forward.

The class dates its commencement from September 23, 1909, when our college year 1909-1910 began. Some of us thought we knew something about animals, horses in particular, that first evening when we gathered in the college laboratory, but now that we have been introduced to the first steps of our profession most of us have amended the opinion we formerly held.

To the able professors, under whose guidance we are striving to solve the problems which come our way, we owe our success in this, our initial college session. It sometimes happens (we would tell it all) that our patient, be it a horse, dog or cat, fails to survive our best methods of treatment, theoretically or otherwise; but it must also be said, in justice to the class, that in every instance "the operation was successful," even though the patient decided negatively.

There is much individuality exhibited by members of the class, and the Editor regrets that he is unable to record here more of its history; fortunately, perhaps, for the reader, space in THE CHERRY TREE is limited, and the Editor is reminded that he cannot further trespass upon valuable space.

Review of the Season

The past year has been a most successful one from an athletic as well as a financial standpoint. Although the foot-ball team did not meet with the undeviating success of last year's team, its showing was good and is deserving of much commendation.

The Rifle Team holds the intercollegiate championship of the United States, having won this victory for three consecutive years, and no little credit is due to its several members. The Basket-ball Team was handicapped in many ways, and, while the games played were not all victories, yet the team worked hard and the members are to be congratulated on the results of their efforts. The Track Team held its third annual indoor meet at Convention Hall, February 5, at which George Washington again came off with flying colors. The rules of the University Athletic Council, as well as those of the Amateur Athletic Association, with respect to eligibility of members of teams, etc., have been rigidly enforced and the complaints made by those not in a position to know are unwarranted. During the past year a tennis club was organized with courts at Eleventh and Lamont Streets. Some excellent players of the game are enrolled and the membership will be increased this Spring by the addition of eight new men. A tournament will be held in the Fall.

Owing to the many fatalities as a result of foot-ball, public sentiment has been aroused and several schools have abolished the game. The President's Council, while it does not advocate the abolition of the game, has gone down on record as desirous of aiding in every way possible the removal of the "manifest dangers of the game." Its delegate to the Intercollegiate Athletic Association has been instructed to this effect. The game appears to be well rooted at G. W. U., and the lovers of foot-ball need have little fear of its abolition.

The wearers of the "W" now in the University, aside from those whose pictures follow, are:

Foot-ball—D. A. Baer, B. J. Dougherty, P. R. Hooten, K. Maxcy, R. L. Powell, T. H. Sheridan and A. B. Witten.

Track—W. Birney, H. P. Bayly, M. Brame, L. Bowen, H. N. Clagett, T. Curran, M. S. Curtis, J. P. Fleming, W. D. Gill, H. A. Lepper, C. King, R. L. J. Newhouser, R. Patterson, ——— Rollins, T. H. S. Sheridan, C. E. Smithson and J. A. Sterrett.

Rifle Team—J. R. Fehr, W. B. Cash, E. F. Wenderoth, A. R. Calder, C. H. Butman and A. L. Skinner.

Basket-ball—D. R. Covell.

Football

The foot-ball season of 1909 was successful and interesting, the improvement of our teams for the last two years being so noticeable that the manager of next year's team will eliminate quite a few of the teams with whom we formerly struggled on the gridiron, and in their stead the schedule will contain games arranged with some of the larger and more prominent elevens.

While many of our sister Universities have been so unfortunate as to lose some of their men by accidents which are liable to happen in any sport of this kind, we have been fortunate enough to finish the season without a man suffering from the least injury.

The credit for the success which the foot-ball team has attained this year belongs to the manager, Walter A. Sommers; his assistant, Thomas H. Haller, and the coach, B. J. Dougherty. Too much cannot be said about the untiring efforts put forth by these men to make George Washington's eleven one of the best in the South.

The receipts from the games of the year have enabled the Athletic Council to pay off the outstanding debts, and have put the financial standing of athletics on a firmer basis than has existed for years.

The prospects appear very bright for next year, but it is a little early to make predictions as to what the team will do.

The coaching system may be changed and a graduate system inaugurated. With the knowledge which our grads. have obtained from past years of experience on the gridiron, and the services of former Coach Neilson, there will be little doubt about George Washington turning out a winning team. The graduates will be represented by three former foot-ball stars. The schedule is about completed and contains games with some of the best teams in the East.

Manager Haller will look after the wants of the team, and with his recognized ability of handling men there is the greatest assurance that the University will experience another successful year, both athletically and financially.

MANAGER ERNEST RISLEY EATON

The Athletic Council was late in getting started in the direction of track athletics during the season of 1909-10. In spite of this fact however, the season, from many points of view, has been highly successful. On November 17, the Council appointed Mr. Ernest Risley Eaton Manager of the Track Team, and under his efficient management a squad of men was soon at work in the training quarters which were secured in the old St. Matthews building on the corner of fifteenth and H Streets, directly opposite the University. Mr. Bryan W. Morse, who had distinguished himself as quarterback in the foot-ball team of 1909, was made coach of the Track Team.

On February 5, 1910, under Manager Eaton's direction, the Third Annual Indoor Meet was held in Convention Hall. It was the almost universal verdict that this meet, in spite of the handicap of a limited time for preparation, was perhaps the most successful series of indoor games ever held in the City of Washington. George Washington relay team, consisting of Messrs. Bowen, Gill, Bagby and Rollins, scored a victory over that of Richmond College by something like a quarter of a lap.

George Washington was represented also by a number of entries in the Richmond College meet held in Richmond, Virginia, on February 12, 1910; in the Johns Hopkins meet, held in the City of Baltimore March 12, 1910; and in the Virginia outdoor games, held at the University of Virginia April 12, 1910.

CAPTAIN JOHN P. FLEMING

COACH BRYAN W. MORSE

On the whole, in spite of the disabilities we labored under in track athletics, by reason of having no gymnasium and no well-appointed means for either indoor or outdoor training, the season was in every respect a success. Indeed, it reflected great credit not only upon the men of the squad, the manager, the coach and Captain John P. Fleming, who took hold of the team somewhat late in the season, but also upon the University itself.

The successful results achieved by the Track Team during the past season were due in no small measure to the untiring efforts of Chairman H. L. McBain, of the Athletic Council. From the start Chairman McBain took a vital interest in the activities of the track work, and gave liberally in every way to its support.

COURT, Eleventh and Lamont Streets, N. W.

This is a regular administration body, an old-style "Cabinet," if you please, organized for the purpose of continuing one of the policies of ex-President Roosevelt and at the same time to represent the University on the field of sports. Last June we secured the top soil of the White House tennis courts, which was being thrown out to make room for an addition to the office, transported it to the northwest section of the city, rebuilt the courts ourselves, and played the game strenuously during the hot Summer. The season wound up with a tournament in singles. Waters came through winner; Covell held second place, after which the games were called on account of cold weather. The winners are only amateurs—the rest are "insurgents."

The real bright spot of the season is the favor we achieved of the Washington High School girls. We allowed these young ladies the use of the court on alternate days and next year we propose to increase the size of the club by electing them to full membership. We also propose to build a grandstand and surround the grounds with green baize. We expect to be playing tennis when foot-ball is a thing of the past.

The Rifle Club

In West Hall, on November 24, 1908, the Rifle Club was formed. Before that date there was no permanent organization, but our Rifle Team had been victorious the year previous. Four of them returned to school and, with the assistance of the National Capital Rifle and Revolver Club, which kindly gave the use of its range to our men, interest was aroused in the sport and the club finally organized.

After twenty men had been initiated, the number required by the National Rifle Association before a club could become affiliated, the names were sent to the Secretary of that body and the G. W. U. Club became a part of the Association. The basement of the Engineering Building was secured as a range by the officers of the club, and practice in shooting began at once. This practice developed a strong team which won a series of victories over the teams of other colleges.

In order to maintain interest in the sport after the matches had closed, an Individual Re-entry Match was started. This was an open-to-all affair for the students of the University, in which the merchants about town also took an interest and donated prizes to be given to the best shooters. This match lasted from May 3d to the 13th, and was followed by the Inter-Fraternity Match for a cup offered by Lieut. John Doyle Carmody. Phi Sigma Kappa was the successful contestant. As the crowning event of the year, a team of six men was sent to Sea Girt to represent the University in the Intercollegiate Outdoor Match. Our men carried off the honors.

Outdoor Shooting

At the Intercollegiate Match at Sea Girt, June 19, 1909, our Outdoor Team won the championship for the third time, and brought back to the University the National Rifle Association Trophy, together with individual medals. In further recognition of the good work of the team, the Athletic Council awarded the members of the team the letter "W." This was done in accordance with the rule established last year when it was decided that rifle shooting was an intercollegiate sport, and that championship teams should be awarded the letter.

The table below shows the contestants in the match mentioned and the individual scores. Three ranges were fired, 200, 300, and 500 yards. Two sighting shots and ten record shots per man were allowed, making a possible individual score of 50 for each range fired. Finishing with a score of 267 out of a possible 300 is exceptional, and our men can well feel proud of their showing. The aggregate score for G. W. U. was 738 out of a possible 900, and when compared with 725 made in 1908 shows a marked improvement in the team.

The range totals for the team were as follows:

Indoor Shooting

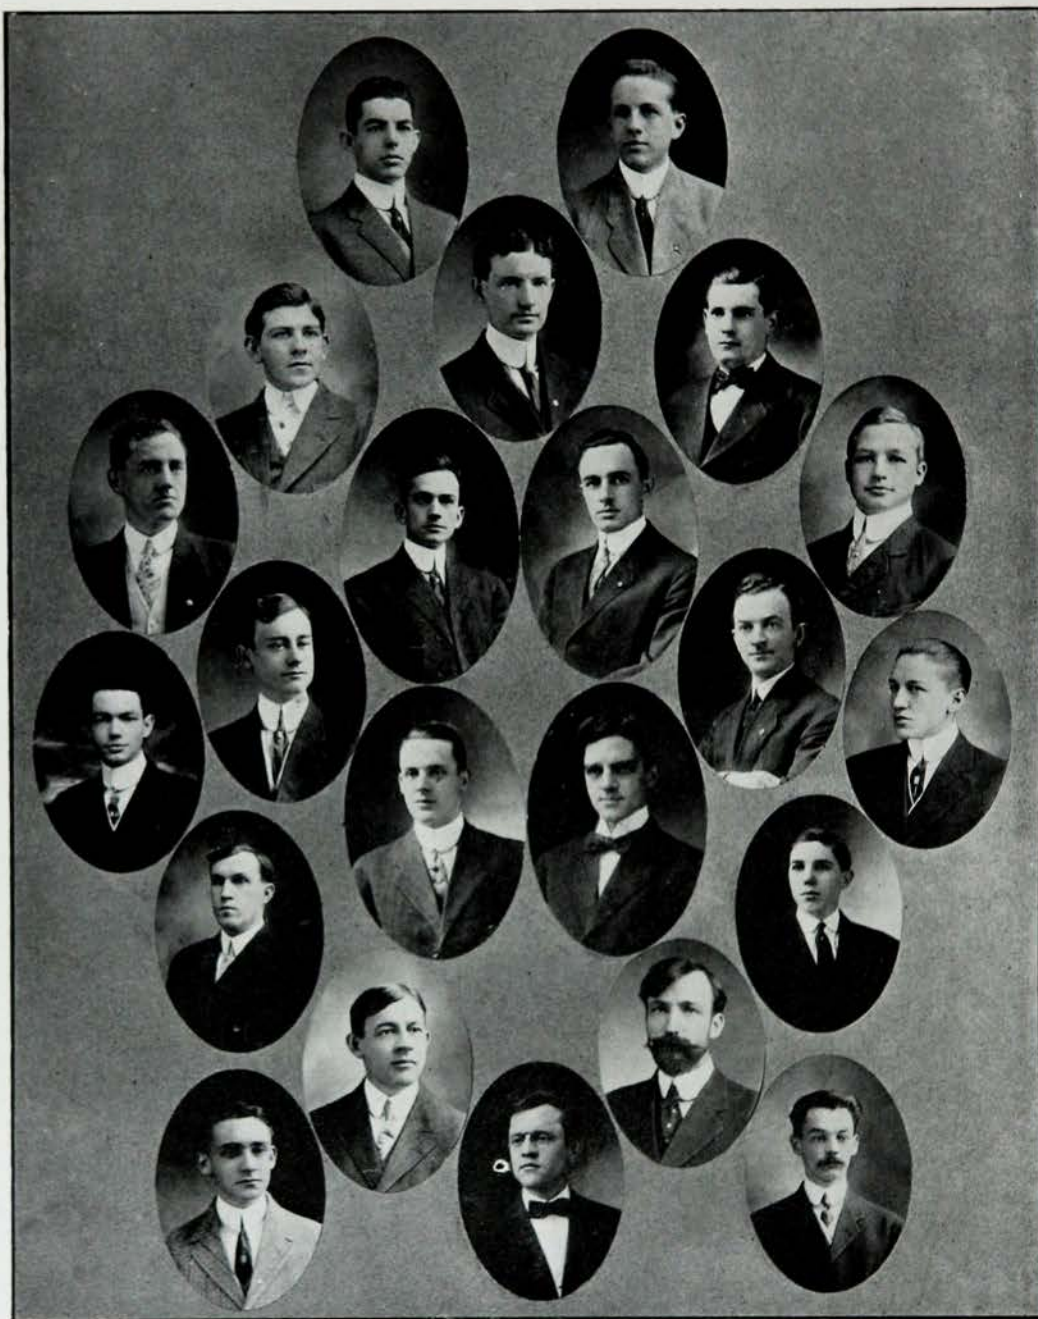

During the season of 1908 the National Rifle Association offered an Intercollegiate Trophy for Indoor Shooting. Teams from Columbia, Massachusetts Technology and other colleges entered a match held at New York. George Washington came out second best, losing to Columbia by only two points.

When the season of 1909 opened it was found that most of the men on the team had not returned to school, and consequently Ralph Howell and Ralph Fehr were kept busy instructing new men in the art of shooting. The teams that year did not meet at any one place, but instead, the shooting was done on the ranges of the individual colleges, and the results telegraphed to the National Rifle Association. Those composing the team were: J. R. Fehr, Captain; R. H. Howell, Manager; F. H. Schnabel, W. B. Cash, E. F. Wenderoth, C. H. Bowker, F. C. Dolbey, H. E. Skinner, and W. W. Burns.

For 1910, a preliminary course of matches has been arranged between fifteen colleges in order to give the teams throughout the country practice. In this way we can very nearly tell who will win the final match, which will be held some time during the month of April.

CLASS PRESIDENTS

This is an organization made up of the presidents of the various classes in the different departments of the University. It is a sort of student advisory body and acts as an intermediary between the students and faculty or administrative body. It also has directory powers in relation to certain student enterprises. For instance, it elects the editor and business manager of THE CHERRY TREE, appoints the manager of the Calcium Club, and selects the members of the students' floor committee at the annual University Ball.

In November last it provided a banquet for the members of the foot-ball team, which was a decided success. It is through this body that the administrative authorities reach the students, and any matter coming from them in which the students are interested is first conveyed to the Association of Class Presidents.

This year the association has been meeting in the office of President Needham, and he has been present at many of the meetings, representing the University and acting in an advisory capacity. The membership follows:

Rooters Club

Organized 1907. Cheer Leader 1909-'10, Arthur DeReimer.

An organization of men with hearty, strong voices which occasionally can be heard at the foot-ball games and elsewhere yelling:

Rah, Washington, Rah
Rah, Washington, Rah
Rah, Rah, Rah
Rah, Rah, Rah
Washington!

G-E-O-R-G-E, George,
G-E-O-R-G-E, George,
Rah, Rah, Rah,
Rah, Rah, Rah,
Rah, Rah, Rah,
Washington.

or singing Bobby Irby's song:

Smash! bang! rip them Washington
You've done it oft' before!
George Washington would cheer himself
If he were not on that Golden shore;
So sons of George lift voices high
And cheer with heart and soul,
For BUFF and BLUE are on their way—
Touchdown and then a goal!

or this:

Tune: Every Nation Has a Flag but the Coon

Princeton floats the Black and Orange, Orange, Orange:
Harvard has the Crimson bright.
Even Georgetown has its colors,
Carolina Red and White.
Cornell, Pensy. and the Indians, Indians, Indians,
Have their colors like the rest.
George Washington is true
To dear old Buff and Blue.
Every college has its flag, but ours is best.

A section of this club will sometimes let you know that it still thrives by bursting forth with various yells at debates, smokers, banquets, etc. It's a good institution, and every fellow in the University ought to be a member of it.

Pyramid Honor Society

During the year there was formed at the University an honor society composed of men who have taken a prominent part in student activities. Fifteen seniors, all of whom have merited such recognition through their enterprise while undergraduates, formed the charter membership and instituted the organization. The society was named the "Pyramid," and has for its purpose the banding together in one body those undergraduates who, by their activity in University interests, have earned the honor of public recognition in order to promote and protect the welfare of the George Washington University and to develop a stronger college spirit among its students. Membership is limited to students who have reached their Junior year, and who have been either athletic men, managers of athletic teams, editors or business managers of college publications, intercollegiate debaters, or who have attained prominence in kindred interests.

The plan adopted is to elect each year from the Junior Class not more than ten men—eight in the Spring and two in the Fall, the new members as soon as elected becoming the active body along with those former members who remain in college. The insignia of the society is a pin in the shape of a pyramid. The society is to be conducted on strictly non-partisan lines, and is formed with a view to stimulating effort on the part of undergraduates in order to receive the recognition thus provided for.

The officers and charter members of the society are as follows:

THE ARCHITECTURAL CLUB

The Architectural Club began its sixth year rather late, as the new officers were slow in becoming accustomed to their new and arduous duties. Mr. Meade Bolton, our little hustler, was elected President; Mr. Haller, Vice-President; Mr. Blackley, Secretary, and Mr. Russell, Treasurer. No committees were appointed as they are not needed. These four officers, occasionally assisted by some student wandering in, do all the work.

The first meeting was held early in November and proved to be a howling success. A little business was transacted and then the Freshmen were invited into that lovely suite of rooms in our basement. Chaos reigned supreme. The Freshmen were punished in the paternal fashion and then, being tied together, were marched down the Avenue to pay their respects to the beautiful statue of Franklin; after which ceremony they were adjudged to be students in good standing and subsequently joined the bunch at the club rooms.

Later, in February, we listened to an interesting talk on "Student Life in Paris" by Professor Murphy, who showed us how terribly tame all our previous bacchanalian orgies had been, but we intend to do better in the future. After the lecture we listened to a witty criticism of a fake exhibit of beaux-arts problems, executed in secret by the officers, the jury consisting of three well-known architects, Messrs. Bollard, Knowles and Witten.

In March we were fortunate in securing Mr. Windom, of the Supervising Architects' office, to lecture on "Ornamental Ironwork." This lecture was followed by another of those delightful Bohemian spasms.

Later in March the club gave its annual dance at Mrs. Dyer's, which was one of the social events of the year. There will follow other like events, it is hoped, since this was such a success.

The administration feels that, by the continued support of the students, our club can be made something more than a students' organization, in that it will hold the students together; even after leaving school and going out into the cold world to battle with competitors and real estate speculators.

On December 4, 1909, Dean Hodgkins called together the men in the Engineering Department for the purpose of discussing the organization of an engineering society. For several years a similar society existed at George Washington, but it met the fate which often befalls a college organization, having dropped out of sight about 1906.

The first meeting was well attended and much enthusiasm was shown. A unanimous vote in favor of organizing a society showed very plainly the attitude of the engineering students toward the project. The appointment of a committee to draw up a constitution completed the work of the evening.

That there is a need for such an organization in a University offering a course in engineering, no one should question. The class work furnishes the foundation upon which the engineer is to build. There he learns principles and formulæ with a few examples to show their application to ordinary conditions. But there are few problems in actual practice which do not involve some special feature, either of design or of construction. Lack of time prevents these from being considered to any extent in the class-room, and it is this field which the society hopes to cover.

The geographical location of George Washington University is especially favorable in this matter. The Reclamation Service, the Panama Canal, and other engineering interests bring many engineers of wide experience to Washington. It is hoped that we can secure some of these men to address the society on engineering subjects.

The society has another object, and that is to bring the men of this department together at regular intervals, thus giving those who otherwise never see each other a chance to get acquainted and compare notes. College organizations should be hot-beds of school spirit and enthusiasm. The Engineering Department has always had representatives on the various teams of the University, but without some common meeting ground it is impossible to arouse much interest in its student body as a whole on account of the arrangement of classes. Some are in school all day, some from half-past four to six-thirty, and some in the evening. With such a schedule some common meeting ground is needed, and it is the aim of the society to meet this need as well as the other.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

H.T.C.

QUARTERS

The quarters of the Y. M. C. A. on the fourth floor of the Administration Building have been occupied constantly by the members and their friends and a fine spirit of goodfellowship has been developed. All men in attendance are cordially invited to come to the room at any time for study, conversation or for participation in the work of the Bible Classes.

BIBLE CLASSES

The Bible Classes have made most encouraging progress. During the Winter, on Mondays from 1 to 1.30 p.m., Mr. Davis, of the Central Y. M. C. A., led the Personal Service Class, while at the same hour on Fridays, President Covell of our Association conducted the Alpha Bible Class with even better results than characterized the venture last year. An innovation which gives promise of much good, has been the establishment of Fraternity Bible Classes. Already two of the leading fraternities have organized classes, and others will no doubt follow their excellent example next year.

CHAPEL SERVICES

The joint services with the Y. W. C. A. held in West Hall on the first Wednesday of each month have proved a benefit to all who attended. In addition the Y. M. C. A. has also conducted the regular Chapel service on Wednesdays.

ANNUAL BANQUET

The Annual Banquet was held this year on February 21, 1910, under the direction of Prescott Stearns Tucker. About one hundred men were present to enjoy the dinner, to participate in the songs and yells as led by Pardee, and to laugh at the numerous stunts which were introduced during the courses. After the coffee, Secretary Cooper of the Central Association, by way of welcome, emphasized the strong bonds of sympathy between the Y. M. C. A. and the college man. Deans Wilbur, Hodgkins and McBain made brief addresses ranging in tone from Dean Wilbur's thoughtful appeal for right living to Dean McBain's humorous exposition of the troubles of the Faculty advisor of athletics. Regrets were received from Dean Vance and from Thomas Nelson Page, both of whom were expected to attend. David Covell made an appeal for new members, as a result of which several men promptly joined the Association. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Charles Wood, of the Church of the Covenant, who chose as his subject the "Moral Side of Athletics." Thanks to the work of Chairman Tucker, to the hearty co-operation of the students, and to the efforts of the speakers, the dinner was notably enjoyable and was successful beyond expectations.

MASS MEETING

Not even a disheartening series of disappointments could make the Mass Meeting, Sunday, March 13, 1910, a failure in any real sense. Judge Dickema, the speaker of the afternoon, was unable to be present on account of the sudden death of his wife that morning, and Mr. Percy Foster who had consented to lead the singing was unexpectedly called from the city the night before. The attendance, moreover, was much smaller than had been anticipated, owing, no doubt, to the counter attractions of three other meetings in the immediate neighborhood, and to the fact that the warm sunshine made it hard to stay indoors anywhere.

But the few who did attend were more than repaid by an earnest address from Dean Wilbur, whose plea for a proper recognition of the place of religion in life was both convincing and strengthening. Vocal solos were rendered by Messrs. Cambell and Carbaugh, two well-known local singers.

To Charles Wilder Marsh, who, as Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, worked hard to prepare an attractive program, and to advertise it thoroughly, are due the sincere thanks of the University and of the Association. As George Washington once wrote to a general who had suffered from a chain of adverse coincidences, so may the Association say in this connection to its Chairman: "Men cannot command success; you have done more, you have deserved it."

STUDENTS' HANDBOOK

In an endeavor to make its welcome to new students effective and real, the Association prepared this year its first Students' Handbook. Fifteen hundred copies were distributed gratis at the opening of the session for the information of every person connected in any way with the University. The book was a first attempt, and therefore imperfect, but it was at least a beginning from which better things may be expected in future.

The retiring officers wish heartily to thank all those professors and students who this year have united to make the Association work so fruitful of results, and earnestly to bid those who will direct the Association next year Godspeed.

The Chapter of the Young Women's Christian Association at the George Washington University has been doing some splendid work this year. We are helping to support the first Y. W. C. A. worker sent to South America. Every week some of our members assist the Associate Charities of the city in their clerical work.

In December, we had a most enjoyable social evening together at the Woman's Building. An entertaining feature of the evening was the auction of small gifts brought by the girls. The proceeds were used for the purpose of spreading Christmas cheer among those in need. On February 23 we had a luncheon which was a great success in every way.

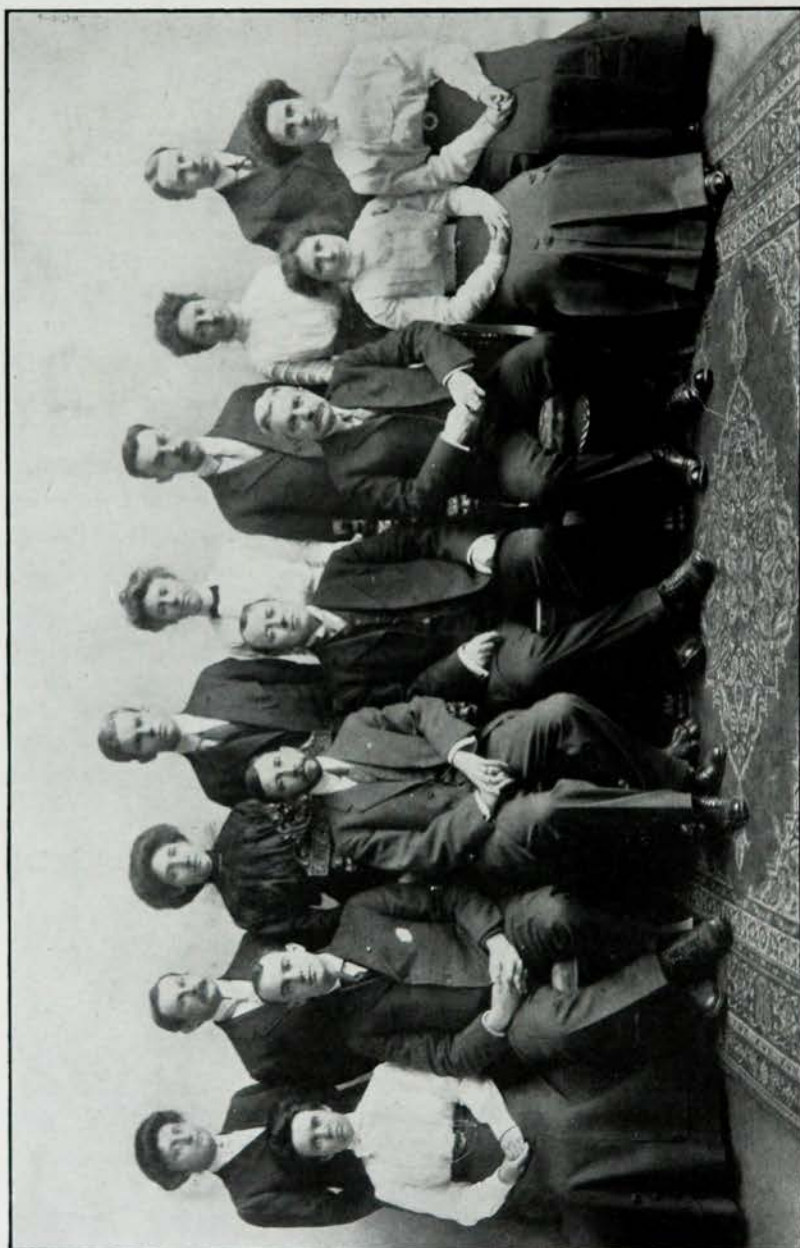

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew is an organization of layman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Its sole purpose is "the spread of Christ's Kingdom among men," especially young men.

A chapter was started on March 10, 1910, and preparations were begun for securing a charter and conducting chapter meetings. The following officers were elected: David R. Covell, Director; John Paton Fleming, Vice-Director; Herman Blaney Chubb, Secretary-Treasurer.

Meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursdays, at 7.30 p. m., in the Y. M. C. A. room, and all students of the University are cordially invited.

THE CLASSICAL CLUB

Nineteen-ten marks the tenth anniversary of the Classical Club in the University. It was organized in 1900 by Professor Mitchell Carroll in order to afford those members of the University interested in the classics a more detailed discussion of special topics in ancient life, literature and art, than the class-room ordinarily makes possible. Before this year only instructors and advanced students in Greek, Latin and Classical Archaeology have been eligible to membership, but now that privilege has been extended to students of Classical Art and Ancient History. Teachers and patrons of the classics in Washington are also admitted as associate members.

The club meets monthly, and at each meeting a paper is read, reviews of recent classical publications are presented, and reports made from various sites of archaeological excavation. At open meetings the club avails itself, when possible, of the services of eminent scholars from other universities who may be temporarily in the city. At the anniversary celebration in January the club was fortunate in having a symposium on "Classical Studies as a Training for Men of Affairs," participated in by Ambassador Bryce, John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, of the Bureau of Chemistry, and Professor James B. Scott, of the Department of Political Sciences.

In the list of honorary members who have addressed the club are the late Louis Dyer, of Oxford University; Francis W. Kesley, of the University of Michigan; George Horton, United States Consul to Athens; Kirby Flower Smith, of Johns Hopkins University; the late Thomas Day Seymour, of Yale University; Wilfred P. Mustard and H. L. Wilson, of Johns Hopkins University, and David G. Hogarth, of the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford.

THE CALCIUM CLUB

THE CALCIUM CLUB.

The Calcium Club was first organized with the intention of assisting the Athletic Association financially. The first performance was given at the New National Theatre, April 15, 1908. This performance was staged by Mr. Waldo R. Pierce, under the direction of the Association of Class Presidents. A regular old-time minstrel show was given, comprising the minstrel first-part and an olio. This show, the pioneer performance, was a success financially and otherwise.

Bearing in mind the success of the previous year, a movement was started during the Fall of 1908 to organize a club on a permanent basis. Through the efforts of Mr. Roy Newhouser and others, meetings were held, officers elected and a new organization formed, now known as "The Calcium Club." Mr. P. L. Scantling, who wrote the book, lyrics and music of the after-piece, was elected business manager, while Mr. Robert von Ezdorf was chosen musical director. Arrangements were made to give two performances at the Columbia Theatre, April 19 and 20, 1909. The executive part of the show was handled the same as the year before, by the Association of Class Presidents. Rehearsals were started during January, and Dr. Paul W. Evans, a member of the "Lambs," kindly volunteered his services as coach and stage director. It was through his efforts that the show was rounded into what was conceded to have been the best amateur performance ever given by the University.

The production consisted of the minstrel first-part, and Messrs. Pierce, Merklin, Carty, and Poole, end-men, kept the house in a gale of laughter at their topical songs and jokes. The lovers of good voices were given an opportunity to hear several of the best male voices in the city. Mr. Charles Bright's baritone solo, "Any Old Port in a Storm," was the vocal hit of the evening. Messrs.

Jeager and Scantling showed those from "Joplin" that they could do stunts with high C's. Mr. Jeager sang "Some Days When Dreams Come True," which was much appreciated. Mr. Scantling, the student-author of "College Days," pleased the girls with a solo, "My Love is Like the Stars that Shine," composed by Bob Irby. The first part ended with a rousing finale, in which all the members took part. The first act was followed by a short but highly amusing dialogue, given by Messrs. Pierce and Merklin, which established a name for the two gentlemen as entertainers of first-class black-face comedy.

The sketch entitled "College Days" occupied the attention of the audience during the latter part of the evening. The scenic effects of this act brought forth applause from the audience when the curtain was raised, and it is even said that the sketch compared favorably with one of "Laskey's" musical acts. Here Mr. Bright again distinguished himself in his opening song, putting the audience in even a happier state than did his previous song. Mr. Scantling sang two of his own compositions during the sketch, "Drink to the Girl You Love" and "Will You Lunch With Me?" In the latter song he was assisted by Mr. Saum and a double sextet. Mr. Jeager's song, "That's Why I Love the Rose," was heartily applauded.

Mr. H. H. Saum, as "Dorothy Darlington," made a leading lady whose face and form would stand inspection in any one of the famous Ziegfeld choruses. Mr. George Graham played the part of "Frau von Mertzberger" in a manner that would make Emma Janvier look to her laurels. As "Oscar von Mertzberger," Mr. Carl Butman carried off his part causing one to think that "Carl" had spent most of his spare time in "Cincinnati" or had actually lived "over the Rhine." Of course, a college play without a "grind" would be like a cocktail without the bitters, therefore in keeping with the part of "Rueter von Mertzberger" Mr. J. L. Moneyway furnished some of the best comedy in the act. Messrs. T. H. Sheridan, R. L. Newhouser and W. T. Coburn, as college men, played their parts admirably, the latter performing a remarkable and original eccentric dance written by Mr. Scantling.

An injustice would be done if the work of the chorus was passed without comment. It has been whispered about college that more than one "fair damsel" received a bunch of flowers inclosing an invitation to dine after the show. As "uplifters of the stage," several members of the club chorus carried off their parts in a most surprising manner.

The prospects for a new play this year are more than promising. A fine book has been prepared by Mr. Scantling known as "The Girl and the Page" and the rehearsals give promise of a show equally as good as that of last year, if not better. At a recent election of officers, the following were selected for the year 1909-10: Mr. P. L. Scantling, President; Carl H. Butman, Secretary; Robert Irby, Treasurer; R. L. Newhouser, Manager; Robert von Ezdorf, Musical Director; Prof. Croissant, Faculty Adviser; and Dr. P. W. Evans, Coach.

Enosinian is the oldest debating society in the University. Its formation dates back to the foundation of Columbian College in 1821. It has for its object intellectual improvement and the acquirement of proficiency in debate. Its doors are open to any student in the University, and meetings are held every other Friday night in the Y. M. C. A. room. Two prizes are offered annually—one for proficiency in debate, the other to the member who passes the highest examination in parliamentary law. The dues are nominal.

"Words learned by rote, a parrot may rehearse,
But talking is not always to converse;
Not more distinct from harmony divine,
The constant creaking of a country sign."

The first two verses of this quotation from Cowper state negatively the purpose of the Columbian Debating Society. The aim of the Columbian since its founding over twenty years ago, has been that of developing in its members, not alone the power of talking, but the ability of saying something when they talk. In the words of Bill Nye, "We don't care how much a man talks if he sez it in a few words." The power of saying what a man thinks, of making known his thought in such a clear, concise and forceful manner that it will carry conviction to his hearers is, we believe, one of the essential prerequisites of a successful lawyer. The Columbian Debating Society in all its work keeps this end always in view.

The first meeting of the year was held on the first Friday evening of the school year. The enthusiasm shown at that meeting has characterized all the subsequent sessions of the society. Our membership at present is forty-five. When the fact is taken into consideration that each man of that number is a live, active, aggressive member, and that each one takes an interest in everything that pertains to the welfare of the Columbian Debating Society, it will be patent that the Columbian holds an enviable place among the debating societies of the George Washington University.

The Needham Debating Society is an organization for the development of debate and public speaking. All students in the Law School and in the School of Political Sciences of the University are eligible for membership. The society meets every Friday in University Hall and debates questions of public interest. After the regular debate, in which four men participate, open discussion is invited, and the extent to which the members avail themselves of this privilege attests the wide interest taken in the meetings, and greatly enlarges the benefits derived from being associated with the organization.

The society also holds three joint debates each year with the Columbian Debating Society, in each of which two honor men are selected for participation in the annual "prize" debate. In the past, debates have been arranged with other schools and colleges.

Needham has an instructor in debate and argumentation of its own, and this progressive policy has resulted in the winning, by this, the youngest debating society in the University, a majority of its intersociety debates, and has aided it in attaining its present high standing and popularity.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS SPOKE

Before we had incorporated grammar and English in our regular shorthand and typewriting course we taught spelling in the following manner:

Each day we assigned twenty-five words, which were to be defined and written in sentences.

Below are a few of the actual mistakes, showing that even a dictionary can be dangerous sometimes:

Pernicion—Bad.

Sen. The beans were pernicion.

Coalesce—To join.

Sen. John would not coalesce with his brother in singing.

Celibacy—Single.

Sen. The leaves on the tree are celibacy.

Abstruse—Dark.

Sen. The room had to be abstruse before the pictures could be developed.

Puffy—Puffed up.

Sen. Bread, after rising, is puffy.

Addendum—Appendix.

Sen. If the addendum is out of order, it causes illness.

Larynx—Top of windpipe.

Sen. The larynx burst during the fire.

Emancipate—Free.

Sen. The doctors said that they would have to emancipate the man's leg.

Though these mistakes sound like fabrications, they were actually made—and by people of average ability

¶ "How would you measure the Washington Monument with an aneroid barometer?" was the question recently asked on an examination. A student with more ingenuity than information replied: "Lower the barometer from the top of the Monument by a string, and then measure the string."

¶ Now this answer was, in a measure, correct. The student gave a perfectly feasible method of measuring the Monument. And yet he failed in the examination. The professor wanted more scientific information.

¶ You and I would never give such an answer. We would prepare ourselves before the examination. At least you would, wouldn't you? In this day of scientific knowledge and methods, you wouldn't think of measuring the Washington Monument with a string, on an examination.

¶ But how about real life? What about the problems of business? Do you expect to measure them with a string?

* *

¶ Fifty per cent of the college graduates who enter commercial pursuits attempt to perform their duties by the string method. They haven't prepared themselves. They don't know the scientific principles of their business. And like the young man in the examination, they fail.

¶ The time has gone by when any hit or miss style will do in business. Commercial activity today is just as much a science as any other. Its principles are well defined. And the man who would be successful must be acquainted with these principles.

* *

¶ The business man has no time to bother with an ignoramus. He demands that you know. You must be familiar with the proper way to make his business successful, or he doesn't want you. In an up-to-date office the untrained man is not even qualified to hold a position as office boy.

* *

¶ This matter of training is one that should be decided by every college man and woman. If you will ever have to earn your own bread and butter you will need the tools with which to earn it, and these tools cannot be acquired in a day. Unless you have an independent income, you will find need for a business education.

CURATIVE VALUE OF TURKISH BATHS

One of the leading encyclopædias has defined a Turkish Bath as follows:

"A popular form of hot steam or hot air bath in which the bather, after being subjected for some little time to a considerable temperature, is vigorously rubbed down, and is then conducted through a series of cooling chambers till he has regained his normal temperature. The secretions and accretions are completely removed from the skin, which is left free to perform its functions."

Dr. Goolden, a leading specialist, has said:

"The Turkish Bath is useful in gout, rheumatism, sciatica, Bright's disease and eczema; it benefits bronchitis, the cough of phthisis, the aching of muscles from unusual exertion, cold in the head and common winter coughs. It is especially valuable for nervous disorders and insomnia."

Every possible convenience and comfort has been provided for the pleasure and benefit of our patrons. The attentive services of expert operators, skilled in massage manipulation, is provided, both in the ladies' and gentlemen's departments, and in both departments alcohol, witch-hazel and other healthful and delightful "rubs" are furnished.

Gentlemen may also have the services of an expert barber, manicurist and chiropodist. They may have their clothing cleaned and pressed while taking their baths or spending the night and may enjoy our fine swimming pools.

Ladies may likewise receive the services of an expert in facial and scalp treatment and manicuring.

In order to popularize this institution, the following low ticket rates have been fixed:

- (1) Club Ticket, for ladies and gentlemen, 50 baths, $25.00.
- (2) 8 Tickets, for ladies and gentlemen, 8 baths, $5.00.
- (3) 4 Tickets, for ladies and gentlemen, 4 baths, $3.00.
- (4) 1 Ticket, for ladies and gentlemen, 1 bath, $1.00.
- (5) Shower bath and rub, 50 cents.
- (6) Sleeping accommodations, in private rooms, per night, $1.00.
